OFFICERS OF ARMY CONFER ON DEDICATION

Plans Laid at Meeting To Handle Large Crowd June 16.

NAME ROBERTS MARSHAL

No Formal Parade Will Be Held Preceding Tomb Ceremony.

A method of handling the huge crowd expected at the dedication of Harding Memorial June 16 was tentatively agreed on yesterday afternoon by Adjutant Frank D. Henderson, adjutant general of Ohio and a member of Governor White's cabinet, other army officials and Chester C. Roberts, who has been designated marshal of the day by officials of the Harding Memorial association. After conferring, the visiting officials and Roberts outlined their tentative plans to Hoke Donithen, chairman of the executive committee of the association, who approved them.

Plans for a meeting next Tuesday to work out further details of police and traffic work in which approximately 1,000 Ohio National Guardsmen, including local companies B and D and United States Army soldiers will be used, were made yesterday by Donithen, Roberts and the officers.

According to present plans there will be no official parade in connection with the dedication, at least none in which President Hoover will participate. Discussion yesterday indicated that the President may go to Hotel Harding immediately after his arrival here on a special train some time Tuesday, June 16. He probably will be taken by automobile to the memorial by way of Orchard, Church and Main streets and Delaware avenue.

The north walk leading to the Memorial will be roped off for the President to walk from the street to the speakers' platform where he will deliver the dedicatory address. After the address, he may leave the memorial grounds by automobile in the rear of the memorial. All plans regarding movements of the President lack the approval of

Up in the Air-Ocean
Just a Scientist
Bombs and the Heifer
Ireland's Revenge

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

MEN DEAL with two oceans, one above the other, of water and of air. In one, we die if submerged too long, in the other, fishes die.

For centuries men have been familiar with the ocean of water inventing legends about it, dived into it for pearl, sailing over it for commerce, and recently men have explored it in diving bells.

Now Professor Piccard, courageous scientist, takes his "diving bell" in the other direction, upward. In an airtight round ball, supplied with oxygen for artificial breathing, attached to a balloon, Professor Picard went up to investigate the stratosphere, near the top of our air-ocean.

He broke the record for height by 12,000 feet, going up 52,500 feet, and risking his life. If the balloon had not come down, he and his assistant, Charles Kipfer, must have suffocated. They had a narrow escape as it was.

• • •

FOR THE FIRST TWO MILES the scientific "climbing bell" went up through the layer of clouds, storms and changing temperatures that lies close to the earth, at the "bottom" of our air-ocean.

Higher up the temperature fell to 135 degrees below zero, still "warm" as compared to absolute zero outside of our atmosphere, more than 400 degrees below zero.

In the upper air a wind blows steadily from the east, caused by the earth's movement. No storms or clouds up there.

And far up the sun and stars shine in a sky jet black, due to the fact that, there is no dust in that high atmosphere. Without dust, so plentiful on the "bottom" of the air, the sky would be always black, there would be no rainfall, and we should probably not be here.

Professor Piccard will have interesting things to tell his fellow scientists, who look upon his escape from death as a miracle.

No monument will be built to him, of course, because he only went up in the interest of science. If he had gone up to kill somebody or destroy a whole city he would have a large monument.

MR. WALKER, mayor of New York, gave a dinner to the young army flying men and their officers, including Brig. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, a splendid officer, commander of all the fliers.

It would have pleased you to see those hundred of keen, eager young men, perfectly at home in the air, flying through all weather in close formation.

The question arises in the mind of laymen: "Why close formation in the air?" In war, each pilot becomes a chief commander on his own account. Air formation, hundreds of planes close together, must offer an excellent target to exploding shells of anti-aircraft guns. It is probably based on imitation of military formation on the earth, and it reminds you of early automobiles that had dashboards in front, although there were no horses kicking up mud.

THE IRISH "SWEEPS" gambling lottery enterprises worry the British. Ten million Britons, whole or part owners of tickets on the Irish sweepstakes, sent money to Ireland. Few will get anything back. At least $5,000,000 of English money goes to Ireland to help Irish hospitals, while British hospitals are in a bad way.

In old days Ireland sent money to London to be spent there by expatriated landlords. Things are turned upside down when the Irish Free State sends little pieces of paper to England and brings back a million pounds of good English money.

NAME RECEIVER FOR STEEL CO.

Mansfield Empire Corporation Plant Included in Court Action.

CLEVELAND, O., May 29—The Empire Steel corporation was in receivership today with its president, Carl H. Henkel, in charge, pending liquidation or reorganization.

It has plants in Mansfield, Niles and Cleveland.

Henkel announced from the offices in Mansfield that court authority will be sought to continue the corporation in operation in order to preserve its value as a going concern.

Henkel was appointed receiver of the country's fifth largest producer of steel sheets by Federal Judge Samuel H. West late yesterday in a friendly action brought by the Interlake Iron Corporation of Chicago.

The receivership was agreed upon at a conference here Tuesday of banking and merchandising creditors after the company was left without working capital. Last Saturday Niles and Youngstown banks obtained judgments for $398,578, and in its petition the Interlake asked judgment for $477,762 for pig iron. The Youngstown Sheet & Tube company also was a creditor to the extent of $220,000.

Debts Listed

The bill of complaint stated Empire owes $2,000,000 in addition to its bonded indebtedness of $3,200,000 upon which interest might be defaulted unless a receiver were appointed.

The receivership follows the failure of financial reorganization decided upon last March. The plan called for subscription of $1,000,000 of new capital by stockholders, but did not meet with general support. Recently the company announced a wage cut of 15 per cent, but rescinded it after 1,600 employes walked out.

ASSAILS THOMPSON ON MILLER OUSTER

Ohio State Sociology Head Criticizes Letter of Former School President.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 29—Dr. James E. Haggerty, head of the sociology department at Ohio State university, today directed a letter to Dr. William Oxley Thompson, president-emeritus, criticizing his recent letter to Dr. George W. Rightmire, president, in the case of Prof. Herbert A. Miller.

Prof. Miller, internationally known sociologist, was notified his contract would not be renewed for next year, because parents had complained of his teachings on race and domestic relations.

Dr. Haggerty informed Dr. Thompson he signed the protest against Miller's dismissal and added. "You and I were jointly responsible for the employment of Dr. Miller in 1924. We recommended his appointment, then, because we regarded him as the best authority on races and race relations in the United States. He is today the best known professor internationally in the university.

In conclusion Dr. Haggerty said, "The whole tenor of your letter seems to indicate that you have ceased to believe in freedom of investigation, freedom of thinking or freedom of speech for faculty members."

A petition was being circulated today among instructors and assistant professors, demanding that the trustees guarantee "academic freedom" [illegible]

Time Thins Ranks of City's Civil War Vets

Fewer in number with each passing year, Marion's Civil war veterans will ride in honor Saturday in the Memorial day parade. Since last Memorial day, Cooper Post No. 117, G. A. R., has lost five members. Two of them were Charles Wiley, commander of the post for years and Col. George B. Christian, its last charter member.

A survey of Civil war ranks in the United States shows that only 41,743 of the 2,859,122 "Boys of '61" are alive today, and that in the last year 10,000 of the veterans died.

Twenty-one of the more than 100 members of the Marion post are living to pay honor to their comrades Saturday. With their commander, Francis Layton, 85, of north Main street, they will be accorded every tribute in the ceremonies attendant on Memorial day.

G. W. Poland, 82, who was a member of Co. K, 174th Ohio Volunteer Infantry retains his position as the youngest member of Cooper post. Elmer St. John of Co. G, 64th Ohio Volunteer Infantry, one of the six members of the post over 90 years old, died July 15, last year. His place in the 90-year-old group will be taken by J. H Buchanan who will reach his ninetieth year this summer. Comrade Buchanan was with Co. H, 11th Pennsylvania Cavalry.

W. G. Balding of Co. H, 15th O. V. I., who died Nov. 25, last year was the post member who entertained his comrades with the old camp songs of the Civil War days. Abraham Drake of Co. I, 121st O. V. I., died July 22 last year. Colonel Christian died Sept. 15 last year and Commander Wiley died on Feb. 3 of this year.

The first Grand Army post was organized in 1866 at Decatur, Ill., by Dr. B. F. Stephenson and Rev. W. J. Rudolph, surgeon and chaplain of the 14th Illinois Infantry.

Membership over the United States reached its peak in 1890 when 490,486 veterans were enrolled. The purpose of the Grand Army when it was formed, was to foster the interests of the survivors of the war, to aid in the establishment of soldiers' homes and memorials and to provide for and educate the orphans of soldiers.

Marion's veterans are fast becoming weakened by the infirmities of age, and the post meetings are large if 10 of the members are out. Often four or five of the more active men are the only members able to be present for a meeting.

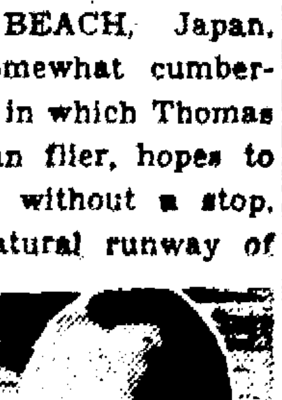
But the spirit that flamed in their hearts when Abraham Lincoln issued his call 70 years ago, flares again when they hear the old familiar strains of "Marching Through Georgia" and "We're Tenting Tonight."

AVIATOR POISED FOR OVER SEA FLIGHT

U. S. Flier To Start 4,400-Mile Trip from Tokyo at 5 P. M. Today.

By The Associated Press

SAMUSHIRO BEACH, Japan, May 29—The "somewhat cumbersome" monoplane in which Thomas Ash, Jr., American flier, hopes to span the Pacific without a stop, rested on the natural runway of this beach today, ready to take off for Tacoma, Wash., at 7 a. m. tomorrow (5 p. m. today, Marion time).



Thomas Ash

Ash landed here late today after a 380-mile flight from Tachikawa airdrome, near Tokyo. He then inspected and prepared the plane for the 4,400-mile solo flight across the Pacific. He expects to land at Tacoma in 40 to 50 hours.

Ash and his mechanic stripped the "Pacific" of every ounce of superfluous metal. Even at that, carrying 1,020 gallons of gasoline and 60 gallons of oil, the flier expected to have difficulty in lifting the plane from the beach. Ash will carry no radio, nor is his plane equipped with pontoons. His only baggage will be a small amount of food and a pocket full of letters.

The alleged shortcomings of the plane seemed to worry Ash little. He has pronounced it "somewhat cumbersome" and "rather hard to manipulate."

DRIVE SHORT $19,000 AFTER LAST REPORT

Audit Has Not Been Completed: Figures Are Unofficial Estimate.

W. H. SYMES ELECTED HEAD

To Work Out Plan To Operate Welfare Agencies on Reduced Budget.

• • •

FINAL SUMMARY

Community Fund Goal	$73,397.00
Subscribed at noon today (estimated)	$54,000.00
Shortage (estimated)	$19,397.00

• • •

Although final figures are not yet available, the fifth and final report luncheon of the 1931 drive at noon today indicated that total subscriptions will reach approximately $54,000.

To Revamp Program

The drive fell short, if the estimated subscription total is correct, by a margin of $19,397. The result will be an entire revamping of the programs of the nine participating agencies in the fund, officials said

The army of approximately 300 workers did everything in their power to attain the fund objective, W. S. Edmund, campaign director declared at the close of the luncheon today. The uncertainty of positions and instability of employment, responsible for Marion subscribers being "off center" in the campaign, are the factors contributing the shortage, Edmund said.

Accurate figures on the campaign will not be available until some time next week when a careful audit has been made. Meantime, loose ends of the drive will be collected by Edmund and his assistants, and information for the executive board to work out a program for the agencies during the coming year will be prepared.

Elect Symes

Wilbur Symes, chairman of the 1931 campaign, was made president of the fund for the ensuing year by unanimous vote of workers present today. He succeeds Frank D. Glosser.

Chairman Symes thanked all workers for their efforts and cooperation in the drive, at the conclusion of the report luncheon.

An appeal to fund workers not to "sour" on the fund plan was made by Rev. L. A. Wood, head of the men's territorial division, "The 1931 drive was fought against great odds, and the fund plan cannot be declared a failure because it failed to work out this year," he said

The employes' division, headed by Chairman A. W. Newby, contributed an additional $1,323,26 today to boost their total in the campaign to $12,202.27. This is between $1,400 and $1,500 more than employes in Marion factories and large business houses gave last year.

The women's territorial division headed by Mrs. H. K. Mouser, swelled its campaign total to $8,757.50 today by reporting an additional $465.25. This amount is nearly $700 more than the women's division raised in 1930.

Add $580 Today

The men's division added $580 today to the amount previously subscribed through its workers, making a total of $9,406.06 for the 1931 drive.

Foreign corporation subscriptions this year totalled $2,250, Chairman Morgan E. Burke reported. This figure is $280 more than this division reported last year.

Mad Pursuit

CHAPTER 35

A Turn in the Path

FERGUS' arm steadied the trembling Nora as they passed on along the path by the river. She looked back at him.

"You don't know me—the real me. I've always longed for the things I didn't have. To belong to someone, someone who cared what became of me. I was afraid too. Fear, that's the answer. If I hadn't been afraid I wouldn't have married Nicholas. When I came home I wanted so desperately to have Jon love me. That's why I lost him. And now Julian, Julian," she whispered the name. "I've always been afraid [illegible]. All the things I have been afraid of have come to pass."

"Perhaps it was your fear that created [illegible] the things," Fergus said.

"Do you think my fear has made Julian do this?"

Again she felt the reassuring pressure of his hand on her arm as he said. "We'll strike off through the woods."

How silent the woods were. The hemlock branches laden with snow trailed the ground, ice made fairy fronds across the bushes and they moved through the soft snow without a sound. But here there were footprints.

"Oh, Fergus, if I find them...if nothing has changed...all my life will be different. I won't be afraid [illegible]."

The path turned sharply. Nora sprang forward with a choked cry. She saw her father leaning against a tree and Damon in a grey fur coat seated on a log. They were talking quietly. They looked up when they saw the two approaching and Julian Lake lifted his arm with his inimitable grace.

His wine-colored eyes were dancing, his brown thin cheeks reddened by the cold and when he spoke, his voice had its old light-hearted timbre.

"They have followed us. Tracked us down!" he greeted them.

Nora introduced Fergus to Damon. Damon rose, austerely sweet, her pale face in the ghostly white light that the snow laid over everything seemed to be lighted from within.

"Your father and I have been talking. He will tell you about it," she said extending her hand to Nora.

Nora caught her father's arm and held it tight against her. She clung to him as though she would never let him go. The other two turned and went on ahead.

"Why this wild affection?" Julian Lake said looking down into her face.

"Nothing's happened to you... you're here...I have you. Oh, Julian, no matter what happens, we can bear it now!"

"Nothing's going to happen," he smiled.

They waited until the other two were lost to view. Then her father began to tell her with an enthusiasm that was boyish, that Damon was not going to prosecute him. Nicholas' pictures were to be put in a permanent collection.

"But why—how—"

"I told her I was going to kill myself. But the water looked so cold—I got one foot wet when she called me back. She said she would forgive me, for Nicholas' sake," her father said with a wry twist of his mouth. "But enough of that sad tale. Now, my own, I have a plan—"

Nora's heart sank.

"There's an artists' colony, been struggling along for years in Vermont. It needs new life in it. Damon suggested that I go there—"

He began to elaborate the plan. He would live in one of the cottages, administer the funds that Damon would put at his disposal.

"No, I will not run off with them, I can see it in your face, my child! Besides it's impossible," he admitted. "But this is to be a creative school for struggling artists. And Damon sees now that with my spirit, my vision, I can put it on its feet. I have only to interest certain well-known artists in it—"

He talked on and on. He was happy. Years had dropped from him. And as he talked, Nora saw that at last he would have a place to live, a place where he would be free to work, where his explosive words and mad schemes could hurt no one.

She said as they came out of the woods and trod the snowy path:

"Oh, Julian, I'll never be afraid again."

When she came down next day from the office she found Jon waiting for her.

"I'll drive you home," he said.

She watched him thread his way through the traffic recklessly. He seemed different to her. Or was it she who had changed? She only knew that his restless vitality as it showed in his voice and gestures tired her, that he no longer had the power to stir her senses. She looked at him with a cool observation which she might give to a stranger. Here was the same boy that she had met when she was 15, but then he had believed anything was possible. Now he was meshed in his conflicting desires. And for the time his desire was for her. She saw it in the glance he gave her, she felt it in the very atmosphere between them. But she strained back from him imperceptibly.

"Your father's going to that colony in Vermont. He's very keen about it, isn't he?"

"Yes," she smiled.

"You and I are free."

He had come out on the river road now and he slowed down the car; one hand on the wheel, he steered negligently while he gave her all his attention.

"I thought," said Jon, "we could go off at once. We won't tell anyone. That's the best way."

"Jon, I don't want to go now."

"Only last week—"

"But things are different since last week. I'm not afraid any more."

"That's just the reason— Did you know that Damon is going to leave me? Doesn't that make a difference?"

He waited for her to show some feeling but only a little movement touched her face like the faint ripple across a pond.

"Nora, what's happened to you?"

"I don't know," she said honestly. "It's only—that I don't want to go with you. I could never feel . . secure. You will forget me in a little while."

"It's that beastly young doctor, that Irishman, what's-his-name!"

"It's no use, Jon."

"I'll make you come! You will come, do you hear? I've always had everything I wanted. I shall have you."

Her silence seemed to madden him. He sent the car forward with a lurch. At first she was not aware of what he was going to do. Then she saw that he was trying to frighten her into submission. The read seemed to shoot from beneath them and Nora clung to the side of the car, her teeth clenched.

He must be a little mad. There was some intrinsic flaw in all the Thayers that verged on madness.

She braced her feet against the footboard and sat rigid in her corner. At last she cried when his speed became unbearable.

"Jon, are you trying to kill us?"

The words were torn out of her lips. Now his driving was like a madman's. He grazed another car as he flew past, rocked around a corner on two wheels, while the engine seemed to spit the air with its roar.

The air tore at her hair and stung her face like needles. Telegraph poles veered toward them crazily and seemed to bend as they passed them. The motor had settled down to a steady drone, and the wind screamed in her ears as the car swept on.

Somewhere out of this confusion, Nora heard the shriek of an approaching train, and then suddenly she saw it sweeping down toward the crossing, a veil of smoke blowing back from it. Now she could see the engineer's frantic signal, waving them away, while another blast sounded.

Jon was going too fast now to shove on the brakes. There was only one thing to do. His foot jammed the accelerator to the floor as the car hurtled into the path of the limited.

To Be Continued.

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

FRIDAY. This was the day! When me and Jubilee woke up I reached over to where my chair was and pulled my pants onto the bed to see if my two-bits was still there, and it was, and then I got up and let Jubilee down and put on my short old britches and went down and got the pail and went out the back door looking for snakes but there were not any there. So I milked my dummed brutes and went in and strained the milk after I had got through telling the bunch that I certainly wasn't going to blow my two-bits till the Fourth. Youniss didn't ast me to, she just looked at me; but Youniss can look at a fella in such a way that it makes him want to spend half a dollar. When I went in to feed my face my grandfather was talking about snakes, and I guess he thinks he killed my snake, he had measured it and it was two feet and seven inches long, and then he had throwed it out in the alley. My grandfather said he was looking it right in the eye so that when I jumped on it it couldn't move. My ant said, "Huh! Try and hold me with your eye!" My grandfather said, "I never seen such a woman. You are always trying to get some man to hold you."

I thought then that I had better go before I got blamed for something, and just as I got out in the yard Mr. and Mrs. Wagmore were coming home from their morning walk and I hollered to them to wait and they did, so I went out to the alley where my snake had been throwed and got it and took it out to show it to them. They were supprized, but Mrs. Wagmore said there were lots of things she would sooner look at, and then the bunch was hollering to me to come on, so I took my snake and curled it up under the leaves where no one would find it in my mother's garden, and went with them. But my mother found it whilst I was at school when she went to work in her flower garden and my grandfather said she screamed so loud she shook the world, and he went stumping out on his flat wheel and killed it again with his cane. When I got home and was told about it I didn't dast tell them it was the same snake. He said snakes always go in pairs, like shoes and stockings and pants and everything. He said this is the time of year there are lots of snakes, because new ones have been born and boys haven't had time to kill them off. My grandfather knows all about everything. He says so himself.

I wonder if snake's little boys have to take care of their kid sisters. I had to mind Amanda [illegible] and I had her out in the [illegible] was showing her the [illegible] I had got again, and [illegible] [illegible] went for the cows, and my ant went through it to see what I had in my pockets, and she fainted away. When I got home my father was there and my mother had talked him out of licking me, but he said he was getting good and tired of that snake, and for me to bury it. It certainly made a long grave.

WE certainly did storm out of school yesterday when it let out for the vacation. All of our dogs were out in front waiting for us and I bet they thought the school was on fire. Dogs aren't very brite. Schoolhouses never burn down.

When me and Jubilee woke up this morning I felt so good I got up on the footboard of my bed and done a flop in the air onto the bed, and Jubilee jumped out of bed like he thought I was crazy, so I swatted him one with the pillow, and then I let him down and got into my short britches and went down and got my milk pail and went out of the house hollering, and when I went back in to breakfast my father told me the next time I done that he would give me something to holler about. I had something to holler about; but he meant something else. Grown up people don't like a kid to have any fun.

Youniss and Maggie and Feeble were over and they had a basket and they said that after we got the cows out we would all go and pick us some dewberries. Picking dewberries is a hairy way to start a vacation, but I didn't tell Youniss so. But when we got out in the country on the way to the pasture it seemed like all the women and children in town had the same idee; the fields was full of girls and their mothers looking for berries, and as far as we could see the fields were full of them, and they looked like ostriches with their heads in the sand and their bussels in the air, but we knew a place over back of the woods past Mud Turtle pond that none of them knew, so we all went over there and got a lot of big juicy ones, and we went past Miss Palmer's and gave her some and she said she would make us some dewberry cobbler and for us to come back in the evening. Then we went to Youniss's and her mother said she would make us some pies, so we waited. Then [illegible] went to Miss Palmer's and we [illegible] all setting around with [illegible] of dewberry cobbler, and [illegible] who has very polite [illegible] told Feeble she [illegible] out her cobbler [illegible] Feeble [illegible]

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Near Collapse

"MADGE, Madge, darling! Don't cry like that! I didn't mean—What did I say, anyway?"

Dicky's voice broke into querulous, bewildered questioning, as he bent over the couch where I lay sobbing against Lillian's shoulder.

From her knees beside me, Lillian's voice ceased the "there, there," which she was uttering exactly as she would have spoken the words in Marion's childhood, and changed to sharpness.

"You said a plenty, although I grant that you probably haven't the slightest idea of the place where you spilled the lentils. But let me whisper gently in your shell-like ear that when you're dealing with a woman as near collapse as this one, who's just been through an ordeal which would try the nerves of a squaw, you want to let your communication, be yea, yea. Never mind the nay, nay. Give her a pat on the head instead of a kick."

I knew that she was rattling on to give me a chance to pull myself together.

"You mustn't blame Dicky like that," I said, and realized as I uttered the words that my voice held a distinctly pettish note. Lillian laughed so delightedly that I knew she was triumphant because of the success of her ruse, and she spread her hands in an exaggerated gesture of appeal toward my father.

"Now, I ask you, Chief," she intoned, "did you ever know the fate of the meddler to be other than this? Allah, he knows I've had my head bashed often enough by an irate wife when I've tried to keep her husband from beating her up. But I'm a fool for punishment. However, my lady!" she laughed down at me, "the next time, I'm going to let your husband go through with the beating, whether you need it or not."

I was able to laugh back at her, and Dicky joined in our merriment. But my father's smile was a reluctant one, and I saw his eyes rest on me with keen appraisal. That he guessed how near hysteria was my laughter, I surmised; was sure of it when he touched Dicky on the arm.

"Better bring 'round the car," he said, "and get her home as soon as possible."

"But—is she fit to go?"

Lillian put me back upon my pillows and stood up, smiling at Dicky's troubled, bewildered face.

"Defend" or "take care?"

"Of course, she isn't. But—neither is she fit to stay here—and the sooner we get her to bed and to sleep the better."

"All right, let's go!" Dicky exclaimed, and was striding to the door when my father's voice again stopped him.

"On second thought, Richard, I wish you would stay here with Margaret and Lillian. I'll get the car, and I'll drive. You can take care of Margaret better than I can."

I wondered if I were wrong in conjecturing that his words might be interpreted "defend" instead of "take care." I had not conjugated my fathers moods and tenses through the years without being able to read something of his mental processes, and I knew that my story of the Chinese who had threatened me because I would not give up the letter had made him feel that I needed guarding even more than did the children.

But I could feel neither fear nor curiosity, and I lay back upon my pillows, utterly spent while my father hurried out of the room, and Lillian busied herself with picking up the things which I had taken from my bag in search for the little pistol, and putting them in the bag again. Dicky paced up and down the room, glancing anxiously at me whenever he turned, until reassured by the smile which I forced to my lips. Then, with his usual ease in throwing off worry, he sauntered over to Lillian.

"Holding the inquest?" he asked idly, then as she picked up the silencer pistol and put it into the pocket of her coat instead of back into my bag, I heard a surprised little intake of his breath. Then he put a hasty comment, so obviously meant to cover his real thought that it betrayed as well as words could have done his realization that Lillian was not entirely sure our journey home was to be a peaceful one.

"I wish somebody's bright mind would figure out just why the writer of this letter to Lee Chow should imagine that our car was a branch postoffice."

There Was One Who Knew!

Lillian wrinkled her forehead meditatively.

"It is queer," she admitted. "Lee Chow kept his business so much to himself that I doubt if anybody besides ourselves knew of his connection with us through Hugh."

"One person did," I said, excitedly, for suddenly I was sure of the author of the letter to Lee Chow which had brought in its consequences almost [illegible] tragedy.

Dicky's Jealous [illegible] Hugh [illegible]

IT WAS not [illegible] ago a [illegible] made his [illegible] his [illegible] Cornfield [illegible]

kept that word for beneath his unreasoning jealousy, he realized the great debt all of us owed Hugh. He could not forget the rescue of Junior from the kidnaper employed by Grace Draper years ago, nor, more recently, the manner in which Hugh had thwarted the last diabolical plot of that implacable woman whose suicide had followed close upon our discovery of her identity.

But every time Dicky has uttered that sneering reference to the best and most faithful friend except Lillian whom I ever have had, I have had almost the same reaction to the words as I would have had if he had slapped me. I knew well enough that the primitive impulse to deal a blow was behind the words, that he uttered them only because his code and training prevented anything more violent.

But I defy anyone to resist Dicky when he is in one of his royally apologetic moods. His infectious smile, his really sincere contrition would thaw the frost from the window panes upon a zero morning. It would take a more sullen nature than mine to keep up resentment toward him when he chooses to exert his powers in staging remorse for his rudeness. I was glad, however, that my weakness from the swoon was an excuse for my silence. I could smile at him, but for the moment I could not speak.

But Lillian, as always, when I need her aid, was sufficiently vocal for both of us.

"All right, Lad," she said, looking fixedly at him. "You saved your bacon that time, but please see that you refrain from those quaint little pleasantries for the next few weeks. As you have just so sapiently remarked, we evidently have a scrap, or scrape — in fact both, on our hands. We can't waste any time, or breath in fool remarks. Now, Madge," briskly, "let's go back to the place where we were switched off the track. You're sure that the characters upon the outside of this paper are those of Lee Chow's name?"

"Yes, I'm positive of that," I returned quietly.

"Then," Lillian's voice was decisive now, and in its crispness I detected a hint of more excitement than she usually permits herself. "Someone of the Chinese, loyal to Lee Chow, knows that he is alive, and that he is on his way here, and has taken this outlandish method of getting in touch with him. Why!" — her eyes leaped to mine and held them—"he and Hugh may be very near."

"Not necessarily." My father's voice broke in with authority in his steady tones. "But that Lee Chow—at least—is alive and headed toward here, I think we may safely deduce. But that his return is imminent—we may not hope for that on this evidence alone. The Chinese are very patient, remember. Time does not mean to them what it does to us."

I heard his words, and noted them subconsciously, for I remembered them later. But while he was speaking all my faculties were centered upon but two words—"at least" and the slight hesitancy which had been his after the utterance of Lee Chow's name. What dread lay behind that hesitancy? Did he fear that Lee Chow might be coming to us to tell us that Hugh—?

Lillian gave a little choking cough—a most naturalistic performance. Only I knew that it was one of our private signals which meant "Watch your step." With her uncanny prescience she had realized my interpretation of my father's hesitancy, and was warning me not to give Dicky fresh cause for jealousy of the man whose very name excites his unreasoning anger.

"Some of 'em aren't particularly patient when they've got something in mind that they want," she commented. "This lad who wanted that letter from Madge, for instance, he wasn't doing any masculine double for our dear old childhood friend, Griselda. He was a regular go-getter, that lad. By the way, what is Mr. Ticer's report on him?"

"That he carefully obeyed Madge's direction to pull up every fourth cornstalk, lift it up and let it fall to the ground," Dicky said. "When he reached the other end of the last row, Mr. Ticer wasn't able to see what he did. But he isn't headed back through the Ticer cornfield, that's one sure thing. Sam Ticer has the keenest eyes of anybody I know, and he's hunted through this section since he was born. He's sitting out there with his shotgun ready, and he'll know when that beast is anywhere near. But—I wish you hadn't thought it necessary to let him go, Madge. I'd have liked the job of strangling him."

I knew what was behind Dicky's words, the horrible suspicion of what the man might have carried in the hand he had kept behind him, and the reference he had made to my having too "plitty" a face to spoil. It was his love for me which was behind the criticism—if, indeed, that were not too strong a word for his suggestion. But I was so exhausted in nerves and body that I caught only the reproach, as I fancied it, and to my horror, I could not utter intelligibly the words of explanation which crowded to my lips, but instead broke into convulsive sobs

15 OHIO COLLEGES TO COMPETE TODAY IN "BIG SIX" TRACK MEET

Largest Field in History of Event Entered; 245 Athletes in.

By The Associated Press

OBERLIN, O., May 29—Athletes from 15 of the 19 Ohio conference colleges gathered here today for the preliminary events in the annual "Big Six" track and field carnival. The entry list, totaling more than 245, is the largest in the history of the Ohio conference carnivals.

Ten of the 15 schools are sending complete squads and will compete for the team trophy while the other five have been entered in several individual events.

Any doubt about Western Reserve competing in this year's meet was cleared last night at a meeting of conference managers when the Cleveland entries were accepted. It was believed that the Reserve men would be turned down due to the school's request to be dropped from the conference.

Faculty representatives of the league will meet today to act upon the request

Although two of its star men are out on account of injuries, Oberlin is a strong favorite to repeat its triumph of last year, having a well balanced squad ready for the meet. Jonas Holland, winner of the 440-yard dash last year, and Marshall Cook, star 880 and mile man are the two who will watch the meet from the sidelines nursing injuries.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

PULLING "Dick Merriwells" to win ball games apparently is getting to be a habit with Hap Applegett, a habit incidentally that fits in very well with the pennant designs of Trinity Baptist Sunday school and the C, D. & M. Electric company. If something isn't done about the habit pretty soon the other teams of the league in which these two oufits compete might just as well pack up and go home.

The latest stunt of Applegett's came yesterday in the game between the C., D. & M. and the Huber Manufacturing company. Hap hurled the game for the Electricians, gave up seven hits to the opposition in seven innings, struck out four men and clouted a home run that brought in a trio of scores, enough to win the ball game.

Had Good Support

Applegett didn't win the game alone. He had some good support behind him but he did pitch a good game. It was his sixth straight victory in Marion softball this year. The Huber company jumped into a one run lead in the first of the third but Applegett's four ply clout brought in the three markers in the last half of the same inning and as far as the ball game was concerned there wasn't any after that. Both teams scored one run later in the game but neither had any bearing on the winner.

The Erie Rounrhouse, 1930 city champs, finally broke into the win column after losing two in a row. The railroaders squeezed through to a 1-0 victory over the Susquehanna Silk Mills in the closest game of the day. The game must have been a race against time rather than a ball game if the time it required to play it is any indication. It required just 32 minutes to complete the seven innings. Only 22 men batted for the Roundhouse, one more than three an inning. The losers sent 28 men to the plate but none of them could push a run across. The winners scored their lone run when Price banged out a double and came in on a long fly to center field.

Fairfield Beaten

The Fairfield Engineering company team hopped onto Ralph Clark for four runs in the first inning before Clark was derricked in favor of Cook but the Steam Shovel had little difficulty in over taking this lead and winning the game, 9 to 5. Cook had the Fairfield batters popping up most of the time after he relieved Clark in the first inning. Bob Gibson starred in center field for Fairfield.

BRANDT TAKES HARD BATTLE FROM GIANTS FOR EIGHTH VICTORY

Cleveland Runs Winning Streak to Five in Row, Beating Browns, 5-4

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.,
Associated Press Sports Writer

According to the records compiled so far, it is very much of a southpaws' year in big league pitching.

Left handers usually are considered a wild lot but this season about a half dozen portsiders are right up among the leaders in the mound department and three of them hold a ocmplete monopoly on the top positions in the standing.

Ed Brandt of the Boston Braves has won eight games in a row, taking a hard earned devision from the New York Giants yesterday by a 7 to 6 score to keep his record clear of defeat.

In the American league, left handed Robert Moses Grove of Philadelphia pitched the last two innings against the New York Yankees yesterday and scored the winning run that gave the A's a 5-4 victory.

Grove gained a tie for the league pitching lead with his equally left handed teammate, George Walberg, whom he relieved with the score tied.

Right handers did most of the other work yesterday, but previously Lester Sweetland of Chicago, Clarence Mitchell and Bill Walker of New York, and Jim Elliott of Philadelphia, for the national league and Charles Fischer of Washington, and Pat Caraway of Chicago, for the American had done plenty to place the southpaws in the limelight.

The result of Brandt's victory yesterday moved the Braves back into third place ahead of the Chicago Cubs, who dropped a 3-1 decision to Cincinnati, but left the first two places unchanged as Pittsburgh won a seven inning slugging Duel from St. Louis 11 to 8.

Washington, now second in the American league, improved his margin over the Yankees by beating out Boston 4 to 3, as Crowder and Hadley limited the Red Sox to six hits. Cleveland extended its newly found winning streak to five games and carried the St. Louis Browns' row of defeats through the same number of contests by gaining a 5 to 4 decision.

Ted Lyons of Chicago had the edge in a mound duel with Vic Sorrell to give the White Sox their third straight victory over Detroit, 3 to 2

Brooklyn and Philadelphia in the National league had their second off day.

RED BIRDS LOSE BUT HOLD SECOND PLACE

Saints, Columbus, Louisville Continue Lockstep in Association Race.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 29—St. Paul, Columbus and Louisville, the three top clubs in the American association, can't seem to get out of lockstep.

The Saints have had a percentage point hold on first place for nearly a week and have lost plenty of ball games during the period, but every time the Saints drop one, the Red Birds accommodate by losing and remaining in second place. Louisville hasn't been able to cash in on the reverses of the leaders either, and has obligingly lost when St. Paul and Columbus did.

Kansas City took the odd game of the series from St. Paul yesterday 14 to 7, with batsmen lacing the ball for 34 hits of all sizes and shapes.

Bill Burwell kept 12 Columbus hits far enough apart to prevent too much damage and Indianapolis won 9 to 5.

Pat Crawford, Red Bird first baseman, accounted for his tenth home run of the season.

Sergeant George Connally contributed to his winning streak by subduing Louisville batsmen as Toledo won 6 to 2. The victory was the Sarge's eighth of the campaign, and his seventh in a row.

Jack Knott won his second game of the series as Milwaukee made it three out of four from Minneapolis 5 to 2.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

By The Associated Press

Ed Phillips, Pirates—Clouted home run and triple, each with bases filled, to drive in seven runs against Cardinals.

Bob Grove, Athletics—Went in as relief pitcher, held Yankees to one hit in two innings and scored winning run after doubling in ninth.

RECORD ENTRY LIST EXPECTED FOR MEET

175 Horses Likely To Be Here for Short Ship Meeting Starting June 8.

At least 175 horses from widely scattered sections of the United States will be quartered at the fairground track when the first local meeting of the Ohio Short Ship Harness Racing association opens here on June 8, officials of the local association have announced. Requests for reservations of stall room are being received daily. To date horsemen from nine states have reserved space for the quartering of horses. States from which reservation requests have been received are North Carolina, Indiana, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Kentucky, Alabama and Louisiana.

Interest in the Little Grand Circuit races apparently is on the increase this summer. Urbana, which opened the summer meet season on Wednesday of this week is reported as having unusually large crowds. Local officials are making preparations to care for larger crowds at the races here than have been the case at former meetings.

The loud speaker system of announcing the races will again be in vogue at the local track this summer. This system was first used on the fairground oval last summer and met with instant hearty approval. Steve Phillips, popular starting judge of Xenia, O. will again be at the "mike."

The principal innovation of the Short Ship races here will be the use of the Phillips barrier system of starting the races, introduced for the first time this summer on the Ohio Short Ship circuit. Horsemen at Urbana who have used the new method of starting and spectators of the events are unstinting in their praise of the device

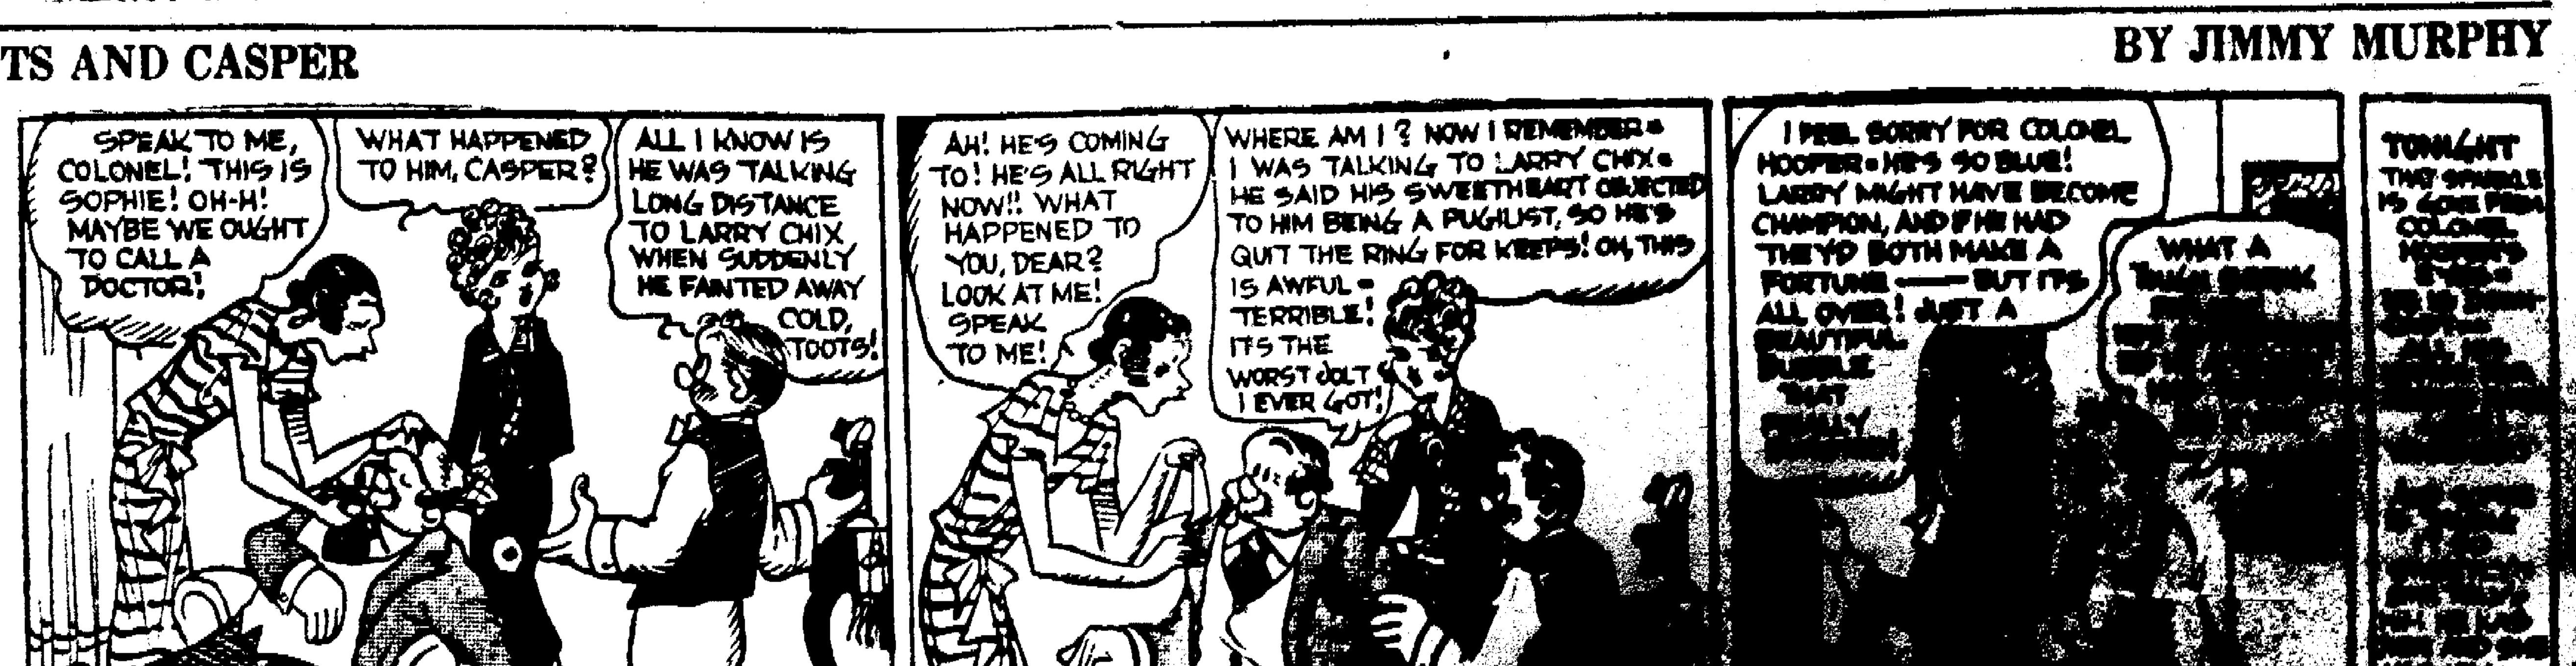
TOOTS AND CASPER

BY JIMMY MURPHY



SPEAK TO ME, COLONEL! THIS IS SOPHIE! OH-H! MAYBE WE OUGHT TO CALL A DOCTOR!
WHAT HAPPENED TO HIM, CASPER?
ALL I KNOW IS HE WAS TALKING LONG DISTANCE TO LARRY CHIX WHEN SUDDENLY HE FAINTED AWAY COLD, TOOTS!
AH! HE'S COMING TO! HE'S ALL RIGHT NOW!! WHAT HAPPENED TO YOU, DEAR? LOOK AT ME! SPEAK TO ME!
WHERE AM I? NOW I REMEMBER - I WAS TALKING TO LARRY CHIX - HE SAID HIS SWEETHEART OBJECTED TO HIM BEING A PUGILIST, SO HE'S QUIT THE RING FOR KEEPS! OH, THIS IS AWFUL - TERRIBLE! IT'S THE WORST JOLT I EVER GOT!
I FEEL SORRY FOR COLONEL HOOPER - HE'S SO BLUE! LARRY MIGHT HAVE BECOME CHAMPION, AND IF HE HAD THEY'D BOTH MAKE A FORTUNE —— BUT IT'S ALL OVER! JUST A BEAUTIFUL BUBBLE
WHAT A
TONIGHT THAT SPARKLE HAS GONE FROM COLONEL HOOPER'S EYES

Gentlemen:

I welcome this opportunity to put on record the benefits I have enjoyed from using ZZZ tablets purchased at your drugstore.

About three years ago last September, my physician advised me that my complication of gall, liver and appendix ailments had reached a point that my only hope for recovery rested with the success of a serious abdominal operation. His examinations showed my physical condition to be such that the hope of a successful operation appeared extremely doubtful.

With this discouraging prospect before me, I tried taking ZZZ tablets and have continued them until this time. I feel that I am completely cured of all my gall and liver ailments and am ready to verify this letter at any time and recommend your remedy to any who may inquire.

Yours very truly,
(Signed)
Mrs. J. W. Tucker,
Route 2,

RAILS DROP TO NEW LEVELS

Carrier List Depressed by April Net Operating Income; Board Tone Improves.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK May 29—With the stimulating effects of higher freight rates completely exhausted, the rail shares plunged to new low levels for the last several years in today's market, and dragged the best of the list after them.

Pre-holiday short covering gave the market a substantial upturn in the early dealings, but advances 2 to 3 points in such issues as U. S. Steel, Consolidated Gas, Allied Chemical and Case, were soon lost.

Omission of the $2 semi-annual dividend on Erie second preferred, while anticipated, was a depressing influence. The Rock Island prefered issues tumbled recipitantly in a thin market, the 6 per cent issue breaking more than 30 points to 50. The common lost 5 points. New York Central declined 3 to the lowest since 1922. Union Pacific and Santa Fe lost about 4, and 2 point declines were numerous. Food shares were also under pressure, Bordon and National Biscuit losing 3. Drug, Inc., and Goodyear lost as much. Trading, however, continued in light volume.

The carrier issues were depressed by April net operating income reports, which were considerably worse than expected a few weeks ago, and expectation of little improvement before August. The first 64 roads to report show a shrinkage of 37 per cent from a year ago, against a reduction of only 23½ per cent in March. While roads are going ahead with their plans to petition for a revision of freight rates, the expected opposition among shippers is developing.

The bond market gave a better account of itself than stocks. Railway issues and the foreign government obligations showed a considerably improved tone. This was distinctly encouraging to Wall Street, inasmuch as the bolstering effects of the cheap money program have been delayed by liquidation in these groups. Foreign bonds aso showed a better tone in the London market

GRAINS MOVE IN UPTREND

Irregular Opening Followed by Advances on Chicago Market.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 29—Grains averaged higher early today after an irregular start. Absence of any adequate drouth relief in Canada and indications of better export demand for North American wheat were bullish factors. Opening ⅛ cents off to ¼ up, wheat afterward showed gains all around Corn started 1⅛ down ¼ advance; and subsequently rallied.

Although Canadian advices told of rain in a few districts of the spring wheat belt, prevailing conditions pointed to acute general need of moisture and to a critical outlook for crops. On the other hand, rains in parts of Kansas and Nebraska were reported as likely to benefit winter wheat. Meanwhile, exports were said to be showing more interest in domestic new crop winter grades, with steady demand also for old crop hard winters and with increasing call for Canadian wheat by Great Britain.

The first of the monthly crop summaries issued by Chicago private experts was out today, and was regarded as bearish. The estimates indicating probable domestic yields of 691,394,000 bushels of winter wheat and 210,000,000 spring wheat. The acreage of spring and Durum wheat, however,x was figured as showing 11.5 per cent decrease compared with last year. Scarcity of offerings lifted corn sharply at times. Oats sympathized a little with corn strength.

Provisions advanced, responsive to upturns in hog values.

YESTERDAY, Pope Pius celebrated his 74th birthday. Flags flew from public buildings in the papal state, messages of congratulation and affection poured in from all over the world.

But it was an anxious day for the head of the Catholic church. Fascist antagonism toward the Vatican grows more intense. Fascist authorities have raided and closed all Catholic clubs in Rome, including three playgrounds financed by American Knights of Columbus.

The Catholic organization called "Catholic Action" accused of political agitation, hostile to Fascism, is ordered dissolved by Mussolini, in all its branches. And the Pope, facing such hostility, feeling compelled to cancel the Italian eucharistic congress, called for next week, speaks of his birthday as "one of the saddest days of my life."

The sadness of the pontiff is accentuated, doubtless, by a feeling of isolation in Europe. In other days, he would have felt himself strongly supported, on one side by Spain, on the other by Austria, both devoted to the church, then, now changed.

It is impossible to exaggerate the historical importance of this anti-religious outbreak developing with such suddenness in Italy and Spain, two most deeply Catholic countries, hitherto.

SENATOR KING of Utah is gloomy about the national debt situation. He says taxpayers will rebel and strike, if the heavy burden continues.

How will they rebel? How will they strike? They will pay, or lose their property, and pay or go to jail.

The debt of the nation, national, state, municipal, plus bonded indebtedness of corporations and real estate mortgages amounts to $152,[illegible]000,000.

That is a considerable sum, and Senator King says all the property in the country is worth only $330,000,000,000.

That estimate, fortunately, is low. It does not include the value of human intelligence. Our annual income is at least $100,000,000,000. And a man or nation should be able to carry and wipe out a debt equal to only 36 months income.

None the less it is because "docile Americans," as Northcliffe called them, allow themselves to be taxed, [illegible] their money squandered by a [illegible] of politicians of whom a [illegible] never have done a useful day's work.

Look at the city of New York, spending in a year more than the United States government used to spend before the war. If you seek a frugal nation, consider this one. We were out of the war, did not start it. But we went in, up to our necks, lent 10,000 million dollars, sent 3,000,000 men, spent heaven knows how many billions. Most of it wasted by $1 a year [illegible].

DEMAND FOR FREE SPEECH MADE AT O. S. U.

153 Faculty Members Protest Against Stand of School Heads.

PETITION MADE PUBLIC

Action Is Outgrowth of Ouster Move Against Professor Miller.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 1—As an outgrowth of the dismissal of Prof. Herbert A. Miller, internationally known sociologist, 153 members of the Ohio State University faculty made public today a protest against the stand taken by the board of trustees and President George W. Rightmire on the question of academic free speech.

The protests contained a joint statement by full professors, assistants and instructors. It condemned the board for "violating the essentials of freedom of academic discussion."

Object to Censorship

The teachers signed their names to a statement which read:

"Affirming their loyalty to the fundamental educational principles of the great institution they serve, they now solemnly assert that no educational principle is so fundamental as that which assures expression of thought and opinion free from the censorship of the board of trustees."

The reason which had been assigned for Prof. Miller's dismissal was that parents had complained about his teachings on the subject of race and race relations, on which he is considered an authority.

"There can be no university true to its name where freedom of thought and speech do no prevail," said a statement issued by the full professors. "The members of the university faculty whose names are hereto appended claim the right to think for themselves on educational and social questions, and to express their thoughts as they deem wise."

Deplore Stand of Board

The younger members of the faculty, in their petition said they "deplore the attitude" of the board of trustees and "protest against the apparent departure from the traditional university policy in regard to academic freedom."

It was disclosed that the petition of the full professors had not been made public last week "in deference to the desire of President Rightmire.

President Rightmire had no comment to make on the petitions. He also refused to say anything about the failure to publish the petitions of the professors after they had requested him to do so.

BOY SLAYER'S CASE PROBLEM FOR COURT

Chicago School Youth Calmly Reenacts Killing of Policeman.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 1—The problem of what to do with a 15-year-old high school boy who slew a policeman and then reenacted the killing, apparently without emotion, confronted authorities today.

Varner Corry

Varner Corry, whose mother, Mrs. Adeline Jones Corry, has been an art teacher in Chicago public schools for 20 years, was the boy. Patrolman Edward Smith was his victim. He shot Smith to death Saturday when the policeman ordered him, his brother Carl, 13, and Schuyler Pearson, 15, from the swimming pool of the John Marshall High school.

Young Corry, who but recently got his first pair of long trousers, led officers to the swimming pool yesterday to reenact for them the killing. He was accompanied by his youthful companions.

The youth told the policeman he had broken into the John Marshall school on previous occasions to swim or loot, and confessed he had stolen the pistol from a desk in the school's gymnasium.

PHONE RATE CASE IS SET FOR JUNE 15

Continuance Decided Upon by Judge Wickham, Named Special Master.

By United Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 1—Federal Judge Benson W. Hough advised the United Press today that a hearing in connection with the suspended increased rate case of the Ohio Associated Telephone company of Marion had been continued to June 15.

The hearing, which formerly had been scheduled for today, was to have been held before Judge E. M. Wickham of Delaware, who was appointed as a special master to review the case by a three judge federal court in Cincinnati.

Previously the court had upheld a temporary injunction enjoining a refund of alleged excessive rates for telephone service collected from subscribers in Marion, and dissolved another which suspended billing of telephone rates as prescribed by the public utilities commission.

It is expected that at the June 15 hearing Judge Wickham will entertain oral arguments and will hear testimony in the matter of rates.

Places Graft Share of Potter at $1,000

By The Associated Press

Schooley, jr., penitentiary convict, according to Frank A. Reighard, member of the board.

Young Schooley, who with his father, was convicted of participation in the playground graft deal, has an application for parole pending before the board. His case was up for hearing last Friday. The elder Schooley, also a former Cleveland councilman, has a longer term to serve.

The parole board is expected to take some action in young Schooley's case within a week.

The other two candidates who filed previously are W. C. Phillians and R. E. Prettyman, both Republicans.

Up to this time, Mayor Jones has been silent about his plans, and would not state whether he would ask for a second term.

Kline, Democratic candidates for reelection to city council, and Henry Hoch of 230 Edwards street, Democratic candidate for second ward councilman.

POISON DEATH LIST UP TO 19

Chicago Authorities Branch Out in Investigating Case of Mrs. Summers.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 1—The deaths of the five known husbands of Mrs. Margaret Summers, as well as those of 14 other persons were under investigation today, Coroner Herman N. Bundesen said, in connection with poison murder charges already made against the woman.

The inquiry, the coroner said, was carried back over a period of 25 years as a result of information concerning Stanley Jones and James Lynch, two of her husbands, whose deaths antedated those of three others. Investigators were trying to learn whether Mrs. Summers insured these men as she did the others.

James Fairfax, Stanley Korzen and Thomas Summers were the husbands who followed Jones and Lynch in death.

Mrs. Summers is charged with murder by poison in connection with the deaths of Summers, Thomas Meyers, a nephew; Thomas Lanagan, 46, and William Reenan, 72. Lanagan and Reenan were roomers of Mrs. Summers. She held insurance policies on them totalling more than $6,500.

All of the 19 persons whose deaths were being investigated were relatives or roomers of the woman.

Investigators confiscated Mrs. Summers' Bible, in which, they said, each death was entered.

Former Cabinet Officer Faces Immediate Imprisonment on Bribery Charge.

WASHINGTON, June 1—The supreme court today refused to review the conviction of Albert B. Fall on charges of accepting a bribe in connection with the naval oil reserve leases as secretary of the interior.

Under hte action of the court, Fall must report at once for commitment under his sentence of one year in the penitentiary and payment of a fine of $100,000.

The former cabinet official was convicted in October, 1929, of having accepted a $100,000 bribe from Edward L. Doheny. The money was alleged to have been brought to Washington by Doheny's son in the famous "little black bag."

The government contended the money was given to influence Fall in leasing the Elk Hills naval oil reserve in California to the Pan American Petroleum company, which Doheny represented.

Fall argued the sum was a loan from one old friend to another.

GARY MURDER CASE REOPENED BY JUDGE

Decides To Hear Arguments on New Sentence for Kirkland.

By The Associated Press

VALPARAISO, Ind., June 1—Judge Grant Crumpacker, who was criticized for the one to ten-year sentence he pronounced on Virgil Kirkland for the slaying of Arlene Draves, today ordered the Gary youth returned here from Pendleton reformatory and said he would hear arguments for a new sentence.

The court acted on its own initiative and said it would set aside the sentence of last Wednesday after a second jury had convicted Kirkland in the girl's death. The verdict was guilty of assault and battery with intent to rape.

Judge Crumpacker said he still contended the law provided for a one to ten year term in the case of a minor not previously convicted of a felony despite the opinion of Attorney General James H. Ogden that it should have been five to 21 years.

His action to bring back Kirkland anticipated that of Prosecutor Robert Estill of Lake county, in charge of the Kirkland prosecution, who immediately afterward moved for a rehearing on the sentence. Kirkland was to be brought here today and arguments heard tomorrow morning.

Estill said he was investigating Kirkland's age, among other things connected with the case. The boy's mother, Mrs. Elmer Kirkland, has sworn he was under 21. He was sentenced under the juvenile act.

POPE, MUSSOLINI MAKE MOVES TO ESTABLISH PEACE

Prospects Brighten for Amicable Settlement of Controversy Between Vatican and Fascists as Result of Conference in Rome.

YOUTH SOCIETIES ORDERED DISBANDED

By The Associated Press

ROME, June 1—Prospects of a settlement of difficulties between the Vatican and the Italian government emerged today from conferences by the pope and Premier Mussolini with their advisers.

At the end of a meeting with 24 cardinals of the curia the pontiff directed the editor of the newspaper Osservatore Romano to discontinue his editorial attacks on Fascist students who have participated in anti-Catholic demonstrations for the last week.

At the same time the premier passed the word to Fascist editors that they were to cease their anti-Catholic campaigns at least for the time being.

A New Complication

The probabilities of peace were somewhat dimmed later with the announcement by the government of the dissolution of all Catholic youth associations not directly connected with the national Fascist party.

It was expected in some quarters that as a result of the dissolution the pope would recall the papal nuncio to Rome, leaving the charge d'affairs as his representative.

Police prefects in the provinces reported to the minister of the interior that all Catholic youth organizations in their territory had been disbanded without incident.

New Protest Filed

Another element was injected into the diplomatic phase today when Papal Count Edward Hearn, director of activities for the American Knights of Columbus in Rome, filed a protest against the closing of three playgrounds operated by that organization.

He asked Ambassador Garrett to pass the protest on to the Italian government and to demand an explanation for what he called "an unjustified and unjustifiable action."

He said he had not been informed as to when the playgrounds would be permitted to reopen and he had been obligd to discharge 25 playground directors.

Tenseness of the situation, prior to today's negotiations was aggravated by the explosion of four bombs near Catholic institutions in Bologna Saturday night. Though no damage was done, a carabiniere brigadier was killed and two persons were injured. Thirty persons were arrested, presumably Fascist youths opposed to the church.

The pontiff said in an address to a group of ecclesiastics in Vatican City yesterday, he would invoke the Lateran treaty and concordant in protesting the closing of the Catholic clubs by Il Duce.

The events of the last few days, he said, were "the first manifestation of proof of an education that is the antithesis of Christian and civil education and entirely given to hate, to irreverance and to violence.

"It is the saddest spectacle to which Rome and Italy have been treated and it has revealed already how far advanced is the work of destruction of all good education.

TO CUT BUDGETS OF WELFARE AGENCIES

Plans To Be Outlined After Compilation of Audit of Subscriptions.

Final audit of subscriptions to the 1931 Community Fund drive will not be completed for at least another two days, fund leaders said this morning. When the exact amount subscribed has been learned, programs of the nine agencies in the fund will be revamped to make allowance for the estimated shortage of $19,397 in this year's drive.

Community Fund headquarters today were transferred from the Citizens' Building & Loan Co. building to the second floor of the Y. M. C. A. building, adjacent to rooms now occupied by the American Red Cross, which last week moved from the fourth floor of the Uhler-Phillips Co. building.

It was estimated Friday at the final report luncheon that total subscriptions in the drive would amount to $54,000. The objective was $73,397.

Looking Back

(Will Rogers Special)

SANTA MONICA, Calif., June 1—President Hoover made a mighty fine and very sincere speech Saturday at Valley Forge. He found somebody that was worse off than we are but he had to go back 150 years in history to do it.

He claims that George Washington was in just about as bad shape with his army then as Mellon is with his deficit now.

But George only had to worry about getting through the winter. We got to worry about getting through the summer, then the winter, then another summer before the Democrats can possibly do anything for us.

STATE LEADERS IN CONFERENCE

Twenty-Third Annual Assemsembly of Governors at French Lick, Ind.

TAXATION GENERAL TOPIC

Possibility of Prohibition Coming Before Group Indicated by Ritchie.

By The Associated Press

FRENCH LICK, Ind., June 1—After three days of Hoosier entertainment, state executives from 24 commonwealths convened here today for the twenty-third annual conference of governors.

Taxation formed the general topic of the opening session with addresses by Governor Wilbur M. Brucker of Michigan and Governor Harry H. Woodring of Kansas.

Tax burdens, declared Governor Brucker, have become a menace to the stability of government. He urged the states assist in the simplification and unification of local political units so they will become more responsive to the public will.

Taxation relief, in the opinion of Governor Woodring, must be sought through reduction in local taxes. He suggested states should adopt a policy of limiting the maximum tax levy or maximum per capita expenditure of local units. Too much state control, he said, was responsible in some instances for high local taxes. He expressed the belief that within prescribed limitations, the local unit should be permitted to work out its own salvation.

With Governors Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, both of whom are prominently mentioned as Democratic presidential candidates, in attendance, the political aspects of the conclave loomed larger than the official business.

Governor Roosevelt will address the conference on land utilization. The Maryland chief executive will preside at one of the round table sessions. Asked whether problems of prohibition or unemployment would creep into the conference, Governor Ritchie said he thought it would be a good thing if the governors would consider "these subjects of vital importance to the people."

TEX STILL HOPES FOR PERMISSION TO LAND

New York Night Club Hostess Refused Permission To Enter France.

By The Associated Press

HAVRE, France, June 1—Texas Guinan does not "choose to run" until the last hope wanes that she and her night club "pals" can land in France.

She was awaiting today an answer from the minister of the interior to her appeal from the government's decision barring her troupe from appearing in a Paris cabaret and orderin; them deported Wednesday on the liner Paris.

"Well, in the words of Coolidge: 'I do not choose to run'" she said. "I will not accept this as final until I receive word from my agents in Paris as I have appealed to the minister of the interior to consider my case."

The party was under strict surveillance in the emigrant hotel in which they have been quartered since they arrived. The girls have been refused permission to resume their jaunts about the city and a scheduled trip to church was cancelled yesterday.

Amplifying the reasons for the government's action, an official of the immigration bureau said he had heard of parties conducted aboard ship by la Guinan and that he did not think "her type of amusement is our type."

300 Kiwanians Here for District Social Meeting

Fostoria and Crestline Clubs Awarded Attendance Trophies at Dinner in Star Auditorium; Ohio District Governor Is Speaker.

Crestline and Fostoria Kiwanains today were in possession of new honors as a result of having won loving cups at a district meeting of Kiwanis luncheon clubs in The Star auditorium last night.

The Fostoria club was awarded a cup for having the largest attendance at a regular meeting when the treasure chest, sponsored by Dr. C. L. Harding of Bellevue, district lieutenant governor, visited the club during the meeting. The Crestline club won its cup for having the largest attendance at the district meeting here last night.

More Than 300 Here

More than 300 Kiwanians from the 13 clubs in this district were here for the dinner social meeting last night.

The cups were presented by Judge Hutchinson of the Mansfield club to the club presidents.

District Governor A. A. Schramm, of Marietta, speaker of the evening, in his address pointed to the Crestline club as an example of what can be accomplished in the way of club loyalty and enthusiasm when real club interest is there. The Crestline club, he said, had been the weakest club in the district, yet had developed enough loyalty to attend the district meeting with all members present.

Kiwanians were divided into three classes by the speaker, the first who attend all club meetings but forgets the club and its purposes as soon as the meeting is over. The Kiwanian who is willing and ready to do his part, if someone will assume the leadership and the member who places himself above the purposes of the club and sacrifices anything for his own end.

Urges Enthusiasm

He urged that the members take seriously the precepts of the club and endeavor to live them so far as it is possible. He also praised the clubs of the district for the success of the treasure chest project. This district he said was the first to complete the program although similar projects were now being conducted in six other districts of Ohio.

The treasure chest which had visited the clubs of the district, was returned to Dr. Harding last night. Carried into the auditorium in a huge chest by a group of pirates, the chest was presented as part of a pirate stunt put on by the Crestline club.

A wild animal act put on by the Marion club, was also a feature of the program. James Hess of Morral whose dancing has attracted much attention, gave a series of three dances, the hornpipe, the Scottish sword dance and the highland fling. He was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. R. O. Bresler and the dances were enthusiastically received by the audience.

Outstanding on the entertainment program were a series of numbers on the xylophone by Kenneth Parker, a 11 year old Sandusky boy. The program closed with the singing of "America" by Mrs. C. L. Rutherford. Copies of The Star containing pictures of the visiting state officers of the club were presented the guests during the evening.

WHEN THE BUGLE SOUNDS "TAPS"

By The Schaffner-Queen Co.

There is no other call so beautiful, so significant, so replete with emotion as the sounding of "Taps."

To the soldier, it is the signal of the close of each day—and it is his last, his final, and his deepest tribute to a departed comrade. The notes, to him, mean:

"Fades the light;
And afar
Goeth day,
Cometh night;
And a star
Leadeth all
To their rest."

There is, in that call, a certain assurance and hopefulness that means much to all who hear it.

Just so, there is an appreciable consolation, a satisfaction, and a gratification, in the service of a considerate and sympathetic funeral director, to all whom he assists.

This is the 31st of a series of editorial advertisements appearing in this paper each Saturday.

NASH

Aviation demands Twin-Ignition!
NASH OWNERS CALL IT INDISPENSABLE!
Air Commerce Regulations, issued by the United States Department of Commerce, absolutely require two spark plugs per cylinder on all commercial aircraft motors of over 40 horse power.
Aviation demands perfection in power. And so two spark plugs, twin sparks, are employed in aircraft motors—to burn the gasoline more efficiently—to provide power, speed, safety and economy beyond the reach of single ignition.
For the same reasons, Nash engineers, in Nash Eight-90 and Eight-80 motors, also provide Twin Ignition.
Of course, you can get along without Twin Ignition. But here, in engineering figures, is what you are missing:
The same motor, with Twin Ignition instead of single ignition, produces 22% more power, 5 miles an hour more top speed, and 2 extra miles of travel from every gallon of gasoline.
And, the prices of these Twin-Ignitioned-motored Nash Straight Eights are no higher than the prices of other cars without this important improvement!

TO SELL MEMENTOS FOR MUSEUM FUND

Souvenirs of Harding Memorial Here for Dedication Visitors.

An appropriate array of ornamental souvenirs will be available for visitors to the dedicatory exercises to be held June 16 at the Harding memorial. Proceeds from the sale of these mementoes will be placed in the fund which is being built up for restoration of the Harding home on Mt Vernon avenue, and the remodeling of the residence formerly occupied by George B Christian, Jr, adjoining the Harding home. Proceeds of the souvenir booklets also will be placed in this fund. Plans for the future as outlined by the Memorial association are to convert the Christian residence into a museum, transferring the articles now housed in the Harding home to the building and restoring the residence of President and Mrs Harding using the furnishings of their own home and arranging it as it was during their occupancy.

The souvenirs all bear reproductions of the memorial in some form and are most attractive. Included in the display are paper knives, horshoe paper weights, compacts, ash trays, spoons, match boxes, bronze and silver elephants and numerous other articles. Particularly attractive are the paper weights made of blocks of the same Georgia marble as that used in the construction of the tomb, with a reproduction of the tomb in metal, and an original Dunlap etching of the late president from which reproductions will be made

Pastor, Salem Evangelical Church

Text: Luke 11, 13

LAST Sunday many churches all over the world observed Pentecost in memory of the descension of the Holy Spirit and as the birthday of the Christian church.

The church since the first day of Pentecost possesses the Holy Spirit collectively, but we need Him individually. Therefore we should ask for Him and the Father, according to our text, promises to give the Holy Spirit to them that ask Him.

What is the Holy Spirit? Many christians are not clear in their minds on this subject. The great evangelist, Moody, said in one of his sermons: "I had been a christian several years before I knew that the Holy Ghost is a person. I always thought Him to be an attribute of God like love, mercy, etc. Now I know better. I found that the Bible in many passages distinctly teaches the Holy Ghost to be a person, who is continually working for the salvation of man."

According to clear teaching of the Bible, the Holy Spirit is the third person in Holy Trinity, with the Father and the Son, true and eternal God. And the Holy Spirit functions by means of the word of God and the holy sacraments, warning, comforting and teaching man.

What is man's relation towards the Holy Spirit? We may assume the right relation or the wrong relation.

(A) We assume the wrong relation towards the Holy Spirit by resisting Him.

We remember, when Stephen was arrested, he arose and in that wonderful speech before the elders and scribes said: "Ye stiffnecked and uncircumcised in heart and ears, ye do always resist the Holy Ghost."

The Holy Spirit warns us every day. O, how often do we directly resist such warning.

The Holy Spirit tries to comfort us in the various trials and hardships of life. O, how often do we resist much comfort.

The Holy Spirit offers to teach us the truth about God and about ourselves and the true wisdom of life. O, how often do we resist such teaching.

(B) We assume the wrong relation towards the Holy Spirit by grieving Him.

In Ephesians 4:30 Paul says: "And grieve not the Holy Spirit." What does he mean? In some of the foregoing and following verses, he tells very plainly what he means. There he says: "Put away lying, speak every man the truth with his neighbor. Do not steal but work. Do not let corrupt talk proceed out of your mouth. Put away all bitterness, wrath, and anger and evil speaking.

Such admonitions also come to us and we need them. If we disregard them, we grieve the Holy Spirit.

(C) We assume the wrong relation by quenching the Holy Spirit.

Paul says to the Thessalonians: "Quench not the Spirit." That may be said to us as well.

What is the right relation towards the Holy Spirit?

(A) We assume the right relation when we pray for the Holy Spirit as the desciples did during the ten days, from Christ's ascension to Pentecost.

(B) Having received the Holy Spirit, we must earnestly seek a greater measure of His power until we are filled with the Holy Spirit as the apostles were. If we pray as they did, we will be blessed as they were.

(C) We must permit the Holy Spirit to warn us when we are in danger, to comfort us when we are in sorrow, to teach us when we are in darkness.

(D) Finally, we must "walk after the Spirit," that is, let Him guide us in our conduct and behavior, allow Him to lead us on the path of righteousness.

"Come Holy Spirit, heavenly dove,
With all Thy quickening power.
Kindle a flame of sacred love
In these cold hearts of ours."

Harding Seniors Hold Class Day Exercises

Graduates Show Humorous Side of Commencement Week Program in Class Will, History and Prophecy; Awards Made to Winners.

Annual class day exercises for the graduating class of Harding High school were held yesterday afternoon at the Chautauqua pavilion. A large audience of parents and friends heard the more humorous side of the graduation program, when they listened to the class history, will and prophecy. The honor roll was read and the D. A. R. medal was awarded.

Hayes Newby, president of the senior class gave the class address, passing on the heritage of Harding High school to the incoming seniors of '32. Allan Justice, president of the junior class, gave the response.

Musical Program

Music for the program consisted of a processional march by the high school orchestra, a piano solo by Miss Helen Cross, a violin solo by Miss Miriam Walker, a song by a trio, Misses Catherine Canfield, Ferol Burley and Dorothy Oliphant, a trumpet solo by Francis Fairchild and a violin solo by Fred Sabback. The class song and school song were sung. The orchestra played an exit march.

Miss Virginia Shipley read a history of the class and Miss Marguerite Rice, Miss Viva Swisher and Keith Maloney, assisted by several of their classmates, read the class will. Maloney, wearing a gray wig and his graduating gown, read the will while the listeners dressed in old-fashioned costumes, applauded him from time to time for his bequests to the junior class.

The class prophecy, in charge of Haver Alspach, Miss Garnet Thomasson, Miss Margaret Himenger and Leroy Klingel, was presented in an original way. Using the school press, a small newspaper, "The Prophesier" was printed, and passed to the seniors and audience by "newsboys" from the class, shouting the headlines. The sheet carried news of the activities of the graduating class of 1931, 20 years hence.

Marshall Speaks

K. H. Marshall, principal, preceding the reading of the honor roll, gave a short sketch commending the class and its leaders on their cooperation and ability as a class to carry on the standards of the high school.

Twenty-seven of the 225 graduates were named on the honor roll. This distinction means that the student has maintained an average of 90 or above in his entire high school curriculum.

The honor list follows: Haver Alspach, Roma Bader, Verna Babcock, Zelma Bird, Robert Bush, Robert Carlisle, Walter Cluff, Oren Craig, Helen Davis, Geraldine Everett, Marian Isaly, Violet Krueger, Helen Lewis, Marjory Long, Imogene Lott, Betty Mann, Hayes Newby, Dorothy Oliphant, Geraldine Scranton, Virginia Shipley, Viva Swisher, Garnet Thomasson, Mary Thompson, Virginia Walterhus, Hildegarde Wagner, George Wilhelm and Jean Witt. Three students, Martha Davis, Emily Halby and Flavilla Hultz were given honorable mention. Their grades reached the average set for a place on the honor roll, but their three years of high school work were not all taken at Harding High school.

Claremont, Oklahoma, is reported to be celebrating a "Take a Bath" week. Isn't this a bit radical for a lot of citizens out there?

Ambassador Dawes, back in this country, predicts an early change to mass optimism. Let us hope the change will not come too suddenly. The country is in no shape to stand a shock!

Ambergris weighing 151 pounds and valued at $240,000 was found in the stomach of a whale landed by a Norwegian whaler, one day this week. As a financial proposition, that beats fishing all hollow.

Returning to New York, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt "conceded" the importance of the protective tariff France has built about her agriculture. It looks as though the governor has purloined at least one garment off the Republican clothesline.

East Liverpool has killed an ordinance limiting the speed of trains through that municipality to fifteen miles an hour and raised the limit to thirty-five miles. Why not? When a train going fifteen miles an hour hits a vehicle, it musses up the nearby landscape fully as much as would have been the case had the speed been twenty miles greater.

One day this week, Frank M. Hawks, having breakfasted in London, took luncheon in Berlin and dined in Paris, making the flight in ten hours. But what's the use? The captain probably could have secured just as great variety in foodstuffs without ever leaving London.

Speakers at the foreign trade convention in New York told the 2,000 delegates assembled that the United States is in the strongest commercial and financial position in the world, and demanded that the whole world be allowed to take advantage of that position by reductions in tariffs here and abroad. Seems to us we have heard something along that line before.

Despite the efforts of the new Spanish republic to stop the outward flow of gold and maintain its currency, the peseta continues to fall. It might accomplish more were it to pay less attention to the gold outflow and more to maintaining law and order. There is little appeal to gold in a land where church edifices are pillaged and burned and mob violence is common.

The International Federation of League of Nations Societies is urging a worldwide cut of twenty-five per cent. in expenditure for armaments. It sounds good, and were the costs of labor and material the same the world over it would be fair, but it's our guess that one who predicts such a cut in the very near future will not thereby and thereon acquire any great reputation as a prophet.

A Chicago man of fifty-five having been haled into court for failure to pay his divorced wife $24,800 for which he was in arrears and $600 a month hereafter, the court reduced the monthly payments to $80 and ordered him to pay the back alimony at the rate of five dollars a week. It may stagger him a bit to pay $100 a month for the present, but the meeting of the back alimony installments for the last seventy years they are to run shouldn't trouble him seriously.

Memorial Day.

Memorial day is a pause to commemorate the service of those who bore arms to secure the ideals of their nation for posterity.

It is an occasion to decorate the graves of the soldier dead—an opportunity to make visible payment of the honor owing those who submitted their lives to the extraordinary hazards of war for love of their country.

It also is an occasion on which to show gratitude to soldiers who are still living. Flowers for the dead—kind words and acts for the living.

Consistent with America's love for peace and subordination of militaristic tradition, Memorial day is more characterized by sweet remembrance than pompous display. It is a kindly occasion; by no means is it a day to remember old hatreds.

Observance of Memorial day is not universal, of course. Due to its original purpose—to honor the Union soldiers who fought in the Civil war—some southern states do not keep it. It is the sincere wish of those states which do observe it, however, that its spirit may be felt universally. It is pleasant to hope that some day, when the bitterness of the Civil war has been softened still more by time, that Memorial day may be kept nationally in honor of all men who have borne arms in the defense of their nation's ideals.

The eighty-ninth general assembly is hoping to establish itself as the body which revised the Ohio taxation system. It may be successful; the chances that it won't be are stronger, however. It has not shown aptitude for good legislation.

Regardless of the doubtful outcome of tax revision, the assembly already has established itself as the body that got so tangled up in its own ambitions that it failed to redistrict the state in accord with federal reapportionment allowing Ohio two congressmen more. Failure to accomplish this necessary task means simply that Ohio will go on for two years more without the representative government it is entitled to under the constitution. A wilful assembly with too many axes to grind has neglected to perform its functions. The extra congressmen to which the state is entitled will be elected at large—and will, consequently, be free lances, unless the farm voice chooses to speak through them.

Another failure of the assembly concerns defeat of the proposal to allow pre-primary conventions, as part of a needed revival of party responsibility in the state. This was expected, but it is no less deplorable now that it has occurred. One is led to wonder how there ever can be political reform in Ohio as long as the anti-reform element perpetuates itself in power by the devices the reform element seeks to destroy.

The assembly passes on to tax revision. Citizens, hoping against their expectations, offer prayers for the best.

The United States department of agriculture reports that, while farm products have fallen in value to the 1916 levels, the prices of the things to buy also have fallen to 1916 levels with the two exceptions, taxes and farm machinery. The first of the two exceptions is in itself enough to turn a possible profit into a positive loss.

The Air Maneuvers.

Criticism of the army air corps maneuvers over various important cities persists. Last Sunday many ministers preached about the maneuvers, and citizens with pacificist tendencies were publicly "disturbed."

Though criticism will not make a jot of difference in the intention of the air branch of the national defense to be prepared, it could be spared with good effect on the public mind. After all, if the words of one sensible minister, Bishop William T. Manning, the air maneuvers are "no more a demonstration for war than the New York police parade was for the promotion of crime."

A nation weak in military aviation would invite aggression in this day of growing dependence on airplanes. The United States, which lies in a good defensive position between the Atlantic and Pacific, should have an air arm capable of reaching instantly to any point or group of points on its long coast lines. The air maneuvers, in effect, are a demonstration of the present power of the less than half-matured arm the United States anticipates possessing when the army air force builds up to its full quota of planes.

The army air corps never has engaged in such extensive maneuvers before. In addition to the valuable experience its aviators and officials will gain from the present exercises, there is the assurance given to American taxpayers that their national defense is on the right track.

A demonstration showing that the United States has definite plans for defending its citizens in the event of trouble is no more a demonstration for war than lifeboat drill on shipboard is a demonstration for a marine disaster. Money spent on safety is never wasted. As long as the world continues to be what it is, there is the need for safety.

If the instruments carried by that German scientist and his companion prove correct, the altitude of almost ten miles attained by them beats the world record by almost two and a quarter miles. It may prove a scientific achievement, all right, but who wants to go up in a balloon anyway and become the plaything of the winds?

River Races.

There still is romance and adventure on the old Ohio river. Despite the competition of other forms of transportation, a few sturdy packets and a great many towboats and barges continue to puff up and down the famous waterway carrying freight and passengers.

An impromptu race, a few days ago, between the Senator Cordell and the Chris Greene, two packet boats, revealed that the rivalry which has prompted so many Ohio boat races in years past still exists. In the last few years there have been many colorful packet races, but mingled with a sincere ambition to win was a certain disturbing element of advertising that took away something from the pure sport of the occasion.

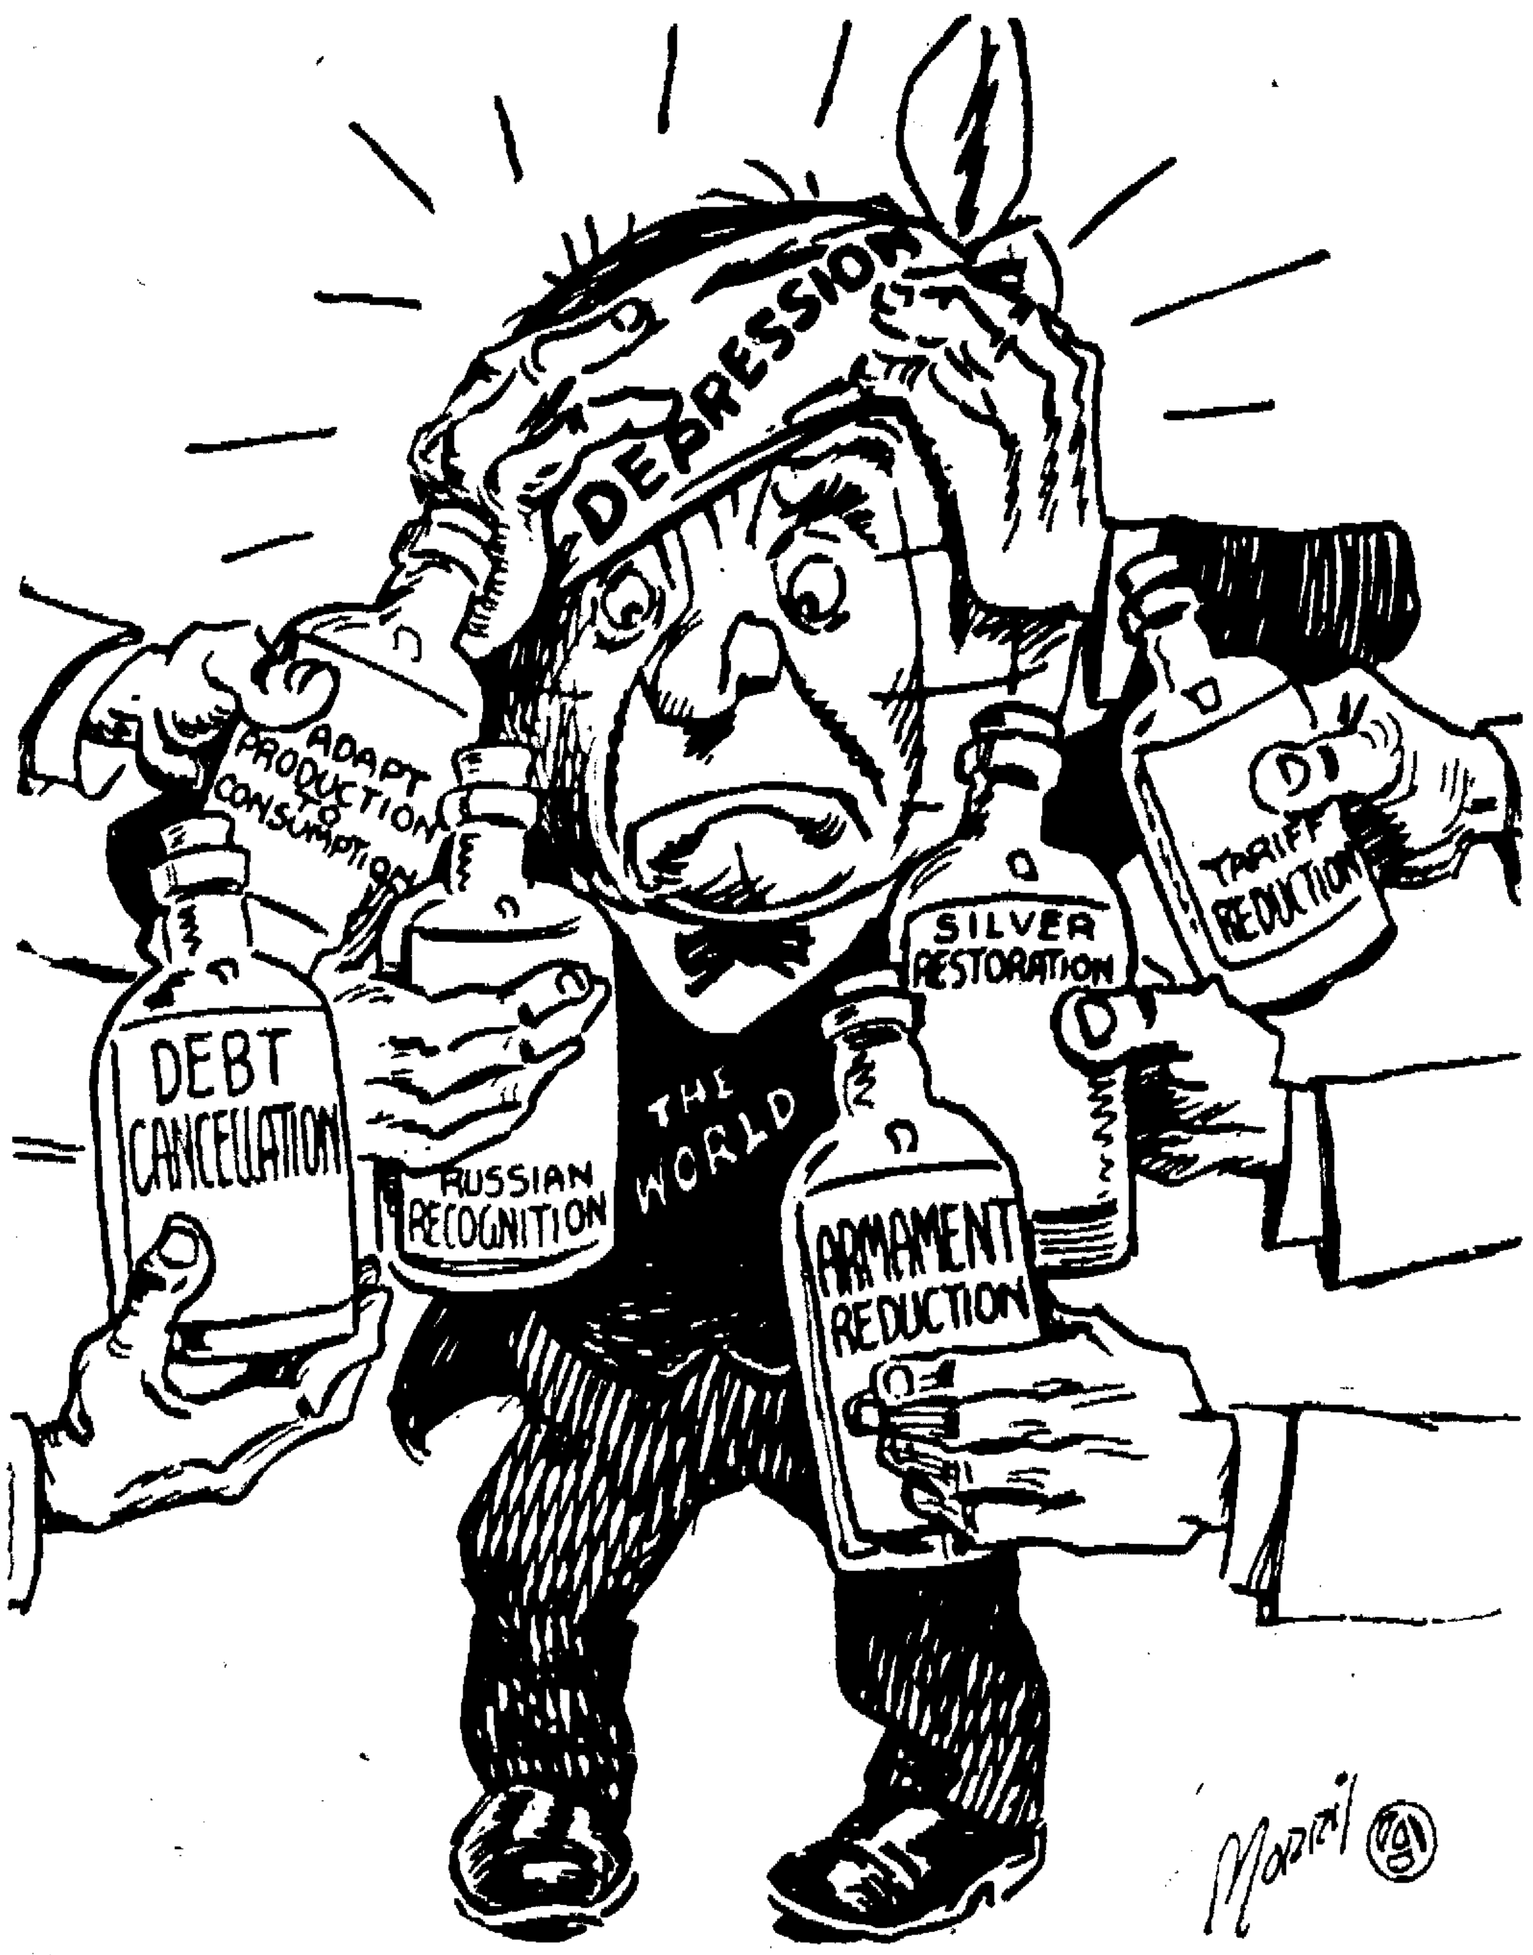
The Senator Cordell and the Chris Greene, however, engaged in a spontaneous race, 165 miles up the river from Cincinnati to Huntington. It was pure rivalry, with both boats encountering all of the normal hardships of passage—the necessity of taking on and discharging freight, the wait at the locks and so on.

Old-time river men said the race, unannounced and unheralded, had more thrills than a dozen highly-ballyhooed races. There is still adventure among the boats that ply "the river."

The New York Automobile club figures that the recreational expenditure of the United States last year was $4,915,000,000, or an average of $40 by each of the country's population, and that two-thirds of this sum was spent for vacation motor trips within the United States. Doesn't read so much like the story of a year of economic depression.

Twelve steel cars of the Great Northern's "Empire Builder" were blown from the rails, one night this week near Fargo, North Dakota, the engine and tender only remaining upon the rails. It may be said, in passing, that North Daktota turns out an unique array of weather, and it's just possible that her people have become so used to atmospheric vagaries that they may consider a wind such as figured in this nothing more than slightly energetic zephyr.

THE WORLD: "PERHAPS IF I TOOK ALL OF THEM I'D BE CURED."



Editorial Opinion.

DEFYING THE MISCHIEF MAKERS.

President Hoover steps on the extra session agitation with his definite announcement that there is not going to be any. This will doubtless displease the La Follettes, Brookharts and Borahs. But it is good news for the rest of us. And equally pleasing is Mr. Hoover's frankness in telling why.

Congressional activity, he believes—and so do nine-tenths of informed Americans—would make the business situation worse, instead of better. And that's that.

Just what could congress do to help the country, if called into extraordinary session at this time?

Prescribe political panaceas for trade and industry? There has been too much of that sort of thing already. Government interference with private business is one of the causes of depression.

Undertake vast public works to create jobs for the unemployed? There is no money in the treasury to meet the pay rolls. Congress appropriated every last available cent, and a billion dollars more.

Tamper with the tariff? Commodities are cheaper today than for many years. The trouble is not a shortage of food and other goods, to be met by increasing imports. The trouble is a plethora of food and other goods that can not be sold. Once this surplus is consumed, economic law, not congress, will open up jobs for those now idle.

Indeed, the continual threats of "Progressives" and Democrats to tamper with tariff rates have contributed materially to the continuance of hard times. It is not so much the failure of the idle man to purchase goods that is hurting business; it is the failure of the man with a job, hoarding his money in the fear that he is going to lose that job, or at least see his wages drastically cut.

But none of these reasons will satisfy the "Progressive" shouters, for they are not so much concerned about the plight of the country as about the plight of the President. If they can harass Mr. Hoover by making the voters think his refusal to assemble congress is a harsh and cruel act, it will be a lot of water on their wheel. But if they could get a special session going, and harass Mr. Hoover by making him veto a number of gaudy, visionary schemes, it would be a lot more water on their wheel.—Minneapolis Journal.

HE'S NO SAFER.

We don't quite get the reasoning behind the statement by the National Safety council that the pedestrian is, comparatively speaking, safer than he formerly was on the streets, because he is suffering only five per cent. more fatal casualties in these days than he did in corresponding periods of time four years ago, whereas there has been a thirty-five per cent. increase of fatalities among motorists.

When a condition becomes more dangerous and destructive than it was, it doesn't at the same time become safer. It may not grow more dangerous as rapidly as some other condition does, but a legitimate comparison made between two situations which are both becoming more evil should be a comparison of degree rather than an opposing contrast.

The death rate among pedestrians is not enlarging as fast as the death rate among motorists is, but the risks both encounter are becoming greater instead of smaller. If there is hope for the pedestrian it is to be found in the fact that the casualties among motorists will eventually produce more careful drivers as a matter of self-preservation.—Detroit Free Press.

INDIA WORSE OFF THAN EVER.

The refusal of Gandhi to go to London for a second Round Table conference will probably put the quietus on that affair, since the other Indian delegates are not likely to go without him. His ostensible reason is the failure to attain any Hindu-Muslim agreement. But it was plain from the beginning that no such agreement was possible. Between the two races and religions there is a great gulf fixed, with small prospect of ever bridging it. That the Hindus are bound to rule or ruin in India has been plain from the first. Lord Irwin's weak concessions were certain to fail; they simply encouraged the congress party in making more excessive demands.

No doubt a certain measure of good feeling was achieved at the first conference. But the British government made the fatal mistake of discarding the Simon report and thus repudiating the careful labors of the representatives of parliament. It was little less than a signal for native obstruction. Moreover, to treat with Gandhi, who had defied British authority, on equal terms was to give him a position of advantage which could not fail to be damaging to British prestige. Now, inflated with a sense of his own importance, he is prepared to hold aloof. Meanwhile the Cawnpore massacres, the continued boycott on British goods and other signs of the inalienable hostility of the revolutionary element in India illustrate afresh the futility of a flabby policy of conciliation which does nothing to settle the real point at issue.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Pure Drinking Water.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Water is one of the essentials of life. Plants, animals and man can not exist without this vital element.

Not all water is desirable. Even the ancients knew this. Though they realized that sickness often occurred after drinking certain water, they did not know why.

It is only within the past half century that accurate methods of testing water and purifying water have been devised. During this period of time it was discovered that certain diseases can be carried by contaminated water supplies.

Among the diseases that are carried by water are typhoid and paratyphoid fevers, cholera and dysentery. Fortunately, cholera is rarely seen in this country. The others have greatly decreased, but still occur.

The germs of these diseases enter the water supply with sewage. Sewage present in drinking water is very likely to lead to disease. It is imperative that such contamination be prevented.

Water containing no germs is clear, tasteless and odorless. It is a safe water to drink. It is assumed, of course, it does not contain any lead or an excess of other minerals or chemicals.

Though odors and taste in drinking water may be disagreeable, they are not always harmful. Frequently where the process of chlorination is used for purifying the water, there may be a peculiar taste to the water. Due to vegetative growths in and around the reservoir, the water may assume a peculiar taste and yet be perfectly safe to drink.

The water supplied to any well-regulated community is regularly inspected and subjected to rigid tests. Methods of purification, aeration and careful planning for abundance of supply, are responsible for the pure water of the civilized community.

The expense and energy expended in this direction have been more than repaid. The reduction in the death rate of certain diseases in all large cities can be attributed only to the control of the water supply.

The Mysterious Past.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

One of the most amazing and perturbing consequences of acceptance of quantum mechanics is the uncertainty it imports into our ability to foresee the future. This ability, from the scientific standpoint, has been one of the bed-rock principles of mechanics. Given a cause, it was presumed possible to predict exactly the effect. The quantum mechanics steps in and definitely limits the possibilities of prediction. It can tell something, but not enough. In a sense, we are able to learn only half of what we ought to know. We may know the velocity of an electron, and yet not be able to determine the moment of time when it will arrive at a given position. A very considerable literature, both in science and in philosophy, has arisen, as the result of this singular consequence of the acceptance of quantum mechanics.

It has been generally supposed, however, and on reasonably valid grounds, that, even on the basis of quantum mechanics, we could give an exact desrription of the past path of a particle. We might not be able to predict the future, but surely we could describe the past!

A recent paper, signed by Albert Einstein, Richard C. Tolman and Boris Podolsky, robs us even of that assurance. The quantum mechanics, if its principles are to be relied upon, actually involves an uncertainty in the description of past events which is analogous to the uncertainty in the prediction of future events. This uncertainty proceeds from the fact that we are limited in the knowledge we can obtain through the measurement of momentum.

We know, presumably, how to deal with so simple a phenomenon as that of the opening and closing of a shutter. We are supposed to know the momentum of a particle in the past, and hence also its past velocity and energy. Unfortunately the past motion of one particle needed in the experiment can not be accurately determined, in spite of current belief to that effect. Indeed, there is no method for measuring the momentum of a particle without changing its value.

As stated in this striking communication, which appeared in the mid-March number of the Physical Review.

An analysis of the method of observing the Doppler effect in the reflected infra light from an approaching particle shows that, although it permits a determination of the momentum of the particle both before and after collision with the light quantum used, it leaves an uncertainty as to the time at which the collision with the quantum takes place.

Thus, although it is possible to measure the momentum of a particle and follow this with a measurement of position, this will not give sufficient data for a complete reconstruction of its past path, since there is no method for measuring the momentum of a particle without changing its value.

If the quantum mechanics be finally confirmed as authoritative, science will have to surrender one of its greatest prides and boasts: certainty. We shall not be able to tell, with confidence, any longer, why we are, what we are and where we are. Nor where we shall arrive, starting from here and now, and going in a certain direction with given velocity.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Was McClellan Wished on Dennison?

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

In the early part of the war when the troops under General McClellan were displaying what was popularly referred to as a "masterful inactivity," and much criticism of McClellan resulted in the newspapers, there appeared a story to the effect that Governor Dennison had been "tricked" into giving him a commission to command Ohio troops, by a number of Cincinnati men interested in the Ohio and Mississippi railroad, of which Captain McClellan was then general manager and of which he was not making a success. The chief owners had been seeking a convenient way to dispose of their general manager, according to this story, and here was presented to them a chance to get rid of the captain—to slide him into the military service. They knew that Governor Dennison, conscious of his own limitations in military matters, earnestly wanted a trained military man to relieve him of a load of these vexatious matters, and they called the governor's attention to McClellan.

In order to have the governor act quickly while he was still in the mind, the story had it that the same men caused a bogus dispatch from Governor Curtin, of Pennsylvania, to McClellan, indicating that the Pennsylvania governor earnestly desired to secure the service of McClellan, to come to the knowledge of Governor Dennison, thus hastening action in the case.

The matter was carefully inquired into by Whitelaw Reid when he was writing his story of "Ohio in the War," and while he found no evidence on either side as to the part taken by Ohio and Mississippi railroad owners, the character of the men concerned was too high to judge them guilty of thus "wishing" an incompetent upon the government in a time like that. Mr. Reid did, however, satisfy himself that no bogus dispatch from the governor of Pennsylvania played any part in the matter.

THE PENALTY of GRAY HAIR

Gray hair—age—slipping. All these unpleasant ideas seem to go together. Yet, it is not at all necessary. Gray Hair often comes to a young head and people who have it are neither old nor incapable. But how often you hear people say, "Why, she has gray hair!" and—she is on the shelf.

This penalty need no longer handicap the woman who uses Canute Water. This is a clear, spring-like water, of wonderful properties which actually restore hair to its original girlhood color. No complicated "color plan"; no danger of getting brunette shade when your hair is blonde. Not only the one kind but the one bottle is enough. It really is surprising what successful, youthifying results it gives.

Apply Canute Water yourself, in the privacy of your own home. Many women in town are doing the same thing; they simply do not mention it. You need not mention it either. Just buy a bottle from any good druggist —and get rid of the "age penalty" in gray hair. Canute Water is so safe, so scientific and sure that your dealer knows it will satisfy you; if not, we will refund your money. Sold and recommended by [illegible] or your own druggist.—The Canute Co., Milwaukee, Wis.—[illegible]

HANDLES BEST OF MATERIALS

New Company Broadens Field of Service to Marion County Builders.

The Marion County Lumber Co., a plant well known to residents of Marion and vicinity, holds the confidence of the public since being purchased March 5, 1929, by the Avenue Lumber & Supply Co.

Located on Bellefontaine avenue at the Pennsylvania railroad, the plant was placed in charge and still is under management of F. M. Brabson. He has a thorough knowledge coming from years of experience in lumber and millwork previous to his arrival in Marion.

Ever striving to go forward with the community it serves to new and great attainments, as in every line of business the old order changeth and the inexorable law of progress supplants the perfection of yesterday with new ideas and new mannerisms, The Avenue Lumber & Supply Co. is constantly taking unwavering steps along the road of progress. This concern continually is broadening its field of service commensurate with the fine ideals that direct the destinies of this comparatively new organization.

Great sheds shelter immense quantities of high grade, seasoned straight-grained lumber and building supplies. Wide assortments of wanted variety of lumber, face brick, cement, wallboard, wall tile, factory finished hardwood flooring, stained shingles, roofing, paints and sashing are included.

The company handles all nationally advertised products and adheres rigidly to the policy of supplying patrons with materials of high quality at a fair price.

One storage shed is devoted to numerous items which will provide for various needs of the farmer. Notch back steel posts, fence posts of cedar or creosote dipped yellow pine, weather proof brooder and hog houses of convenient design and lasting construction, barn paint, overhead doors, barndoor track, hangers and other equipment of benefit to the farmer is on display.

A complete showing of Enterprise paints, enamels, supplies, builders hardware, screen doors, combination screen and storm doors, built in ironing boards and like items are displayed in the retail department of the office building.

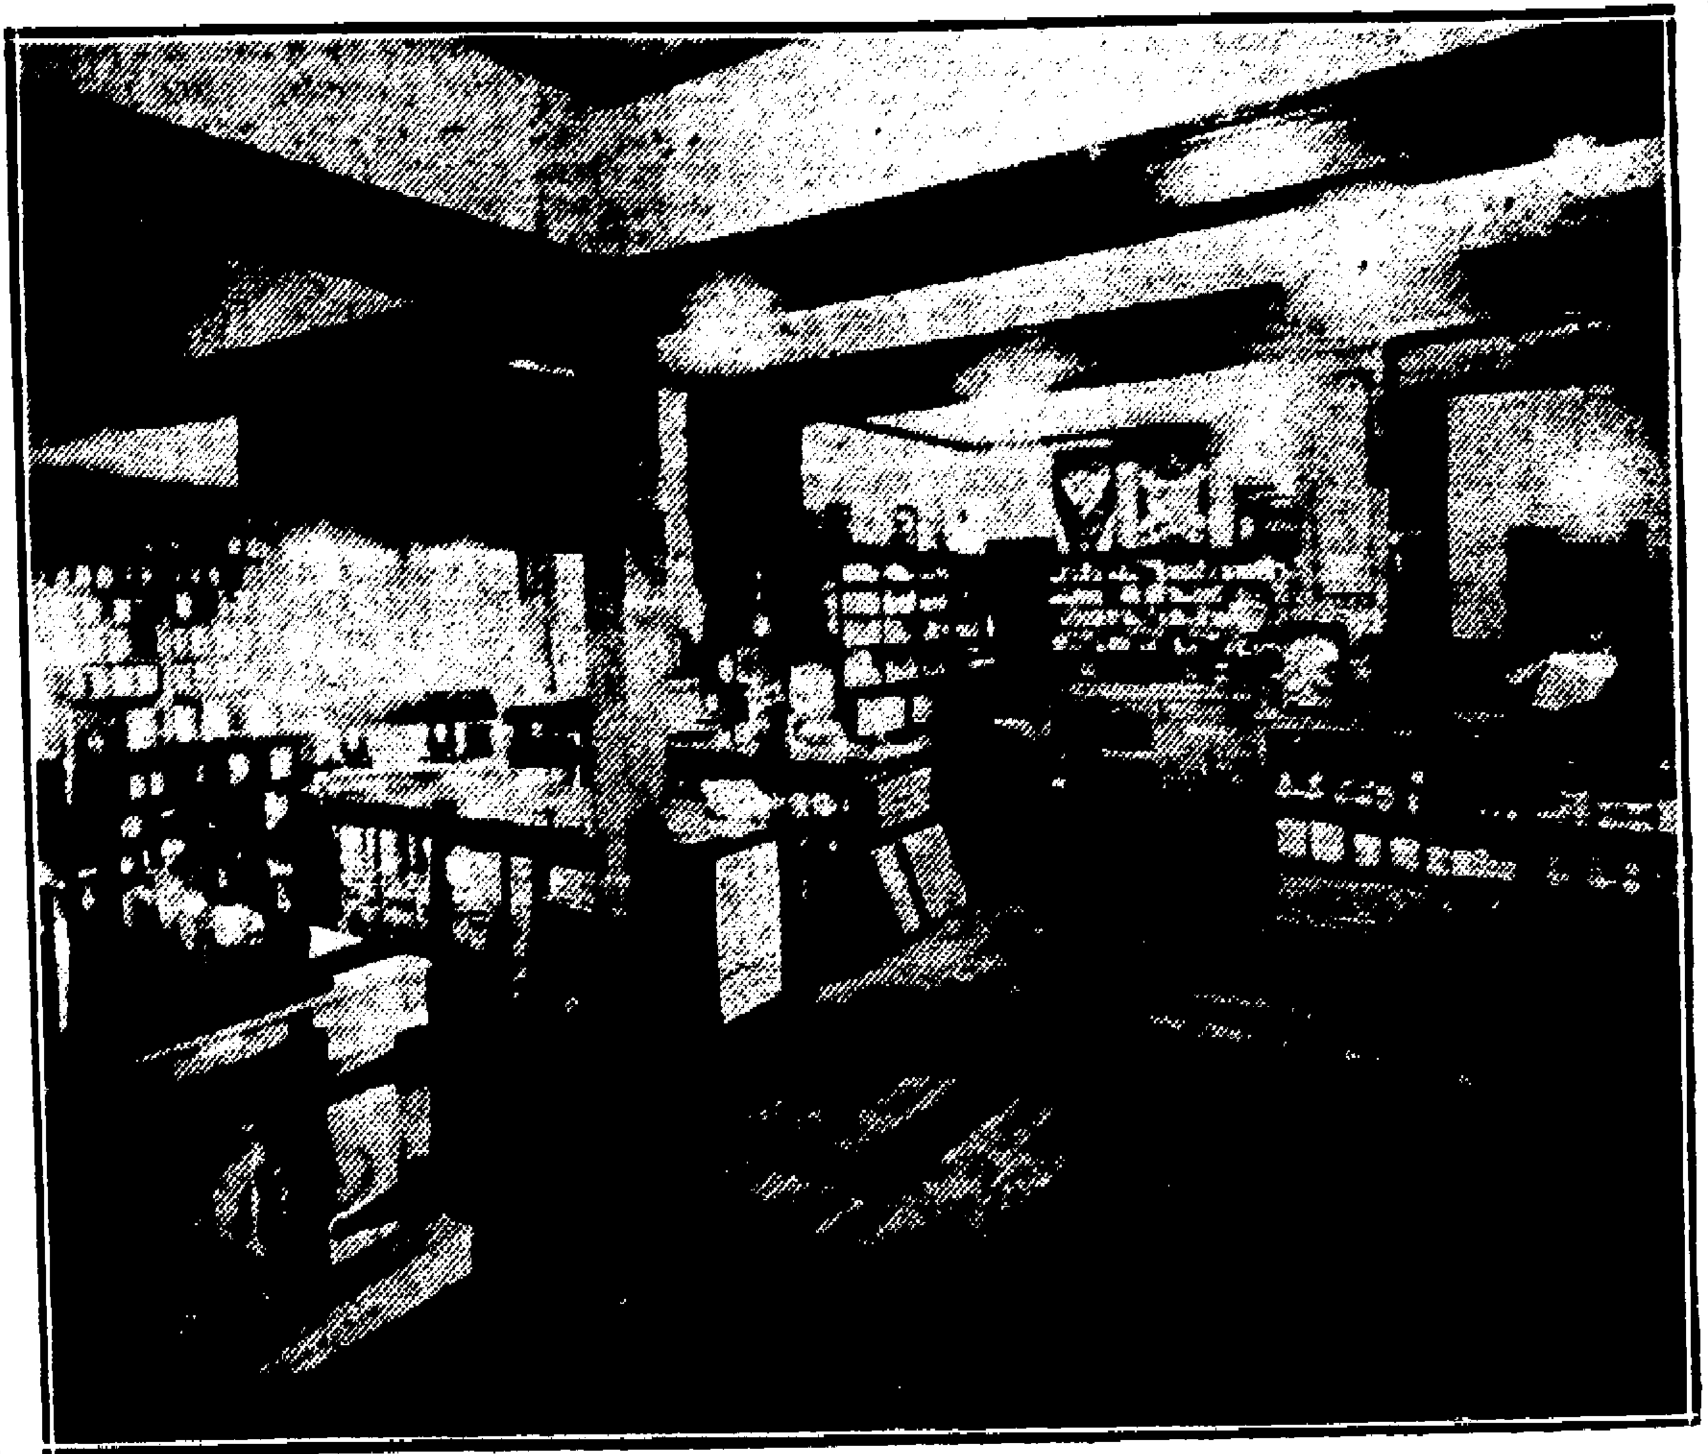
Charming designs and rare beauty are being offered in pergolas, arches, trellis and picket fence for those desirous of beautifying lawns and homes. This wood is rot-proof and will not warp, being constructed of genuine red cedar.

It is now time to think of screens for the home. You can have well fitted, secure screens of copper, or galvanized netting by phoning 2329. The Avenue Lumber & Supply Co. will send a representative to take measurements and give estimates.

No order or task is too large or to small. Methods which largely have been responsible for rapid expansion and new stocks of high quality lumber, building materials, hardware and guaranteed paint challenge your interest in new and broader interpretation.

Chinese immigration into the Philippines decreased about 10 per cent in 1929, the bureau of customs reported.

RETAIL DEPARTMENT INTERIOR



DRAPES OF VARIED COLOR SCHEMES

BY MARGERY TAYLOR
Interior Decoration Editor, McCall's Magazine. Written for The Star.

No longer is it the job of the window shade merely to keep out the glare and gossip.

The new art of choosing shades demands that they harmonize with the architecture and the interior. They must be decoratively right—both from the outside and the inside.

There is a large skyscraper in New York, annually visited by thousands, that furnishes an object lesson in creating this harmony between shades and exterior design.

The architect has insisted that the modernistic lines he has designed for the building must not be spoiled by inharmonious colors of shades. So each of the 4,000 windows has its proper shade, light or dark, white or black.

The example may properly be followed on a smaller scale so as to maintain the decorative and architectural harmony of the home, large or small.

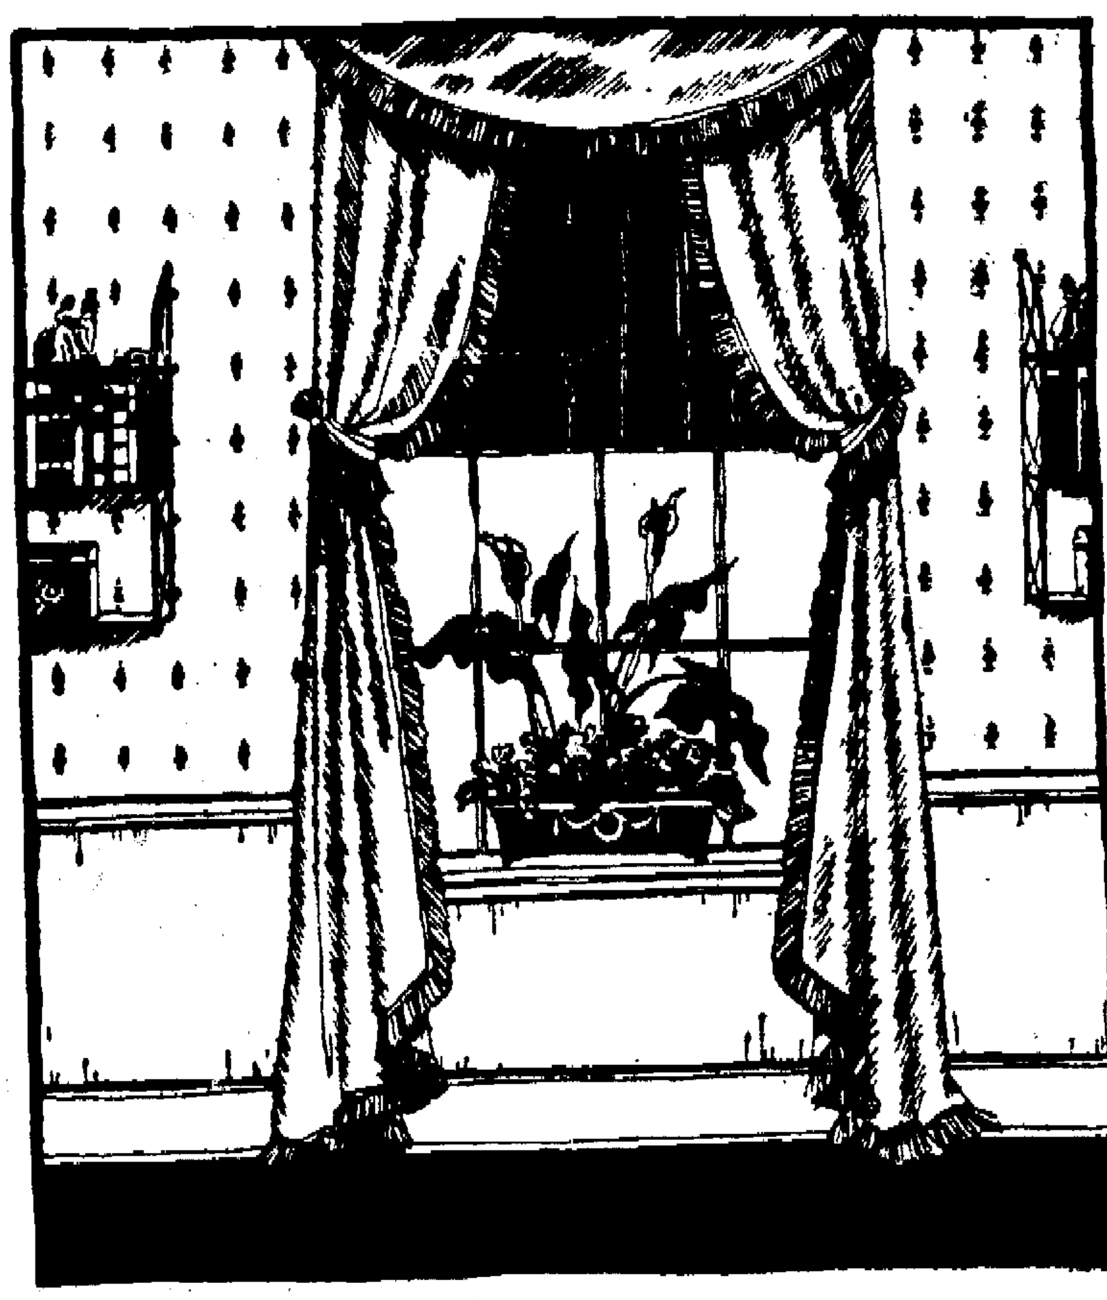
Each type of house has its appropriate shade. White stucco, concrete or stone, for instance, require egg-shell white shades. Green shades, obviously, are right for Colonial houses with green blinds. Brick houses with white trim usually take white shades, while tapestry brick leaves a choice of tan, grey, green or a soft dull blue.

The California stucco base, when it has that rose pink tint, will look its best with shades of ivory, dove grey, stone or faun color.

But don't give up hope if the color which is in harmony with the exterior would look "terrible" inside. For in the versatile modern shades one may obtain a different color on each side—in any combination.

And some of the very new shades kill another traditional bugbear of the housekeeper. No longer must shades pass the years collecting dust and cracking and fraying, for they are made to wear—and to wash.

With care they may be kept as clean as the windows they serve. Hot water, soap and a brush will bring back their fresh color and help keep it for many years.



THEME SONG

"Home, Sweet Home," Adopted by Ohio Building, Loan League.

The coming week marks the one hundred and eighth anniversary of the first public hearing of what has in the course of a century grown to be the most endearing song in the English language—"Home, Sweet Home."

Need for revival of the sentiment expressed in John Howard Payne's classic has been voiced by James A. Devine, executive secretary of the Ohio Building Association league, who points out that new home construction is suffering at the present time because too many people are more interested in temporary luxuries than in the permanent pleasure of home owning. "Home, Sweet Home," which was first sung at Convent Garden, London, May 8, 1823, being included in the second act of an opera called "Clari," or "The Maid of Milan," in latter years has become the theme song of institutions catering to home financing.

OHIO PUMP THROWS WATER FOR GARDEN

Pump Firm Operates in Ohio, Three Other States

In spite of the generally depressed business conditions, the Ohio Pump & Supply, Inc., with offices in the Marion building at 196 south Main street, has enjoyed an almost phenomenal growth.

Organized in the fall of 1929 by W. S. Arthur, president, and Ray R. King, treasurer, with four employees, the company has steadily grown to an organization of 18 persons, nine of whom are salesmen located in all parts of Ohio. The company has branch offices in Cincinnati and Toledo, and expect to open offices at Cleveland in the near future.

Starting out with a small territory in central Ohio, the company has expanded until they now operate in all of Ohio, sixty counties in Kentucky and parts of West Virginia and Indiana.

The company is unique in that it specializes in pumps and water supply exclusively, which has enabled it to grow to be the largest exclusive pump concern in this part of the country. It distributes in all of its territory, Pomona deep well turbines and the complete line for Gould's Pumps, Inc., the world's largest and oldest manufacturers of pumps, as well as several other makes to round out the lines.

City water works supply is one of the company's outlets. It has sold and installed pumps in over fifty municipalities and taken contracts covering the complete water supply, including wells and all pumping equipment including in some cases the complete water works plant.

To insure proper application, it has developed a complete engineering department which renders service to its customers on each installation, no matter how large or small.

The firm has a warehouse on Union street where it carries a complete stock of pumps, from the larger type pumps used for city water works and factory supply down to the small water systems used in home and on farms and even small hand pumps. A complete stock of repairs are carried and the company is equipped to install and service all kinds of pumping equipment anywhere in this section of the country.

BLAME FOR DEFECTS PLACED ON PAINTERS

Local Craftsman Says They Must Cover Mistakes of Others.

The painter and decorator is more or less in the class of "Freckles" of the song by that name, "He always gets the blame," says W. N. Crouso, decorator, 125½ south Main street.

It always has been the good-natured custom for craftsmen in the building trades, to belittle the worth of other tradesmen, and yet there is genuine cooperation among trades and coordination of effort that accomplishes marvelous works, especially in new construction.

But, the painter is put to a real disadvantage in the fact that he is the last man on the job, and falls heir to many minor imperfections caused by the laxity of other craftsmen, and he is expected to correct every thing.

That is the reason that a good craftsman has to study long and work hard to become a good craftsman, have much experience with the defects that are and do often accrue in the plastered walls, wood trim, and floors of the ordinary building, and often are caused by the previous painter or decorator.

The first class artisan in the painting and decorating craft goes a long ways toward correcting these defects, says Mr. Crouso But there are some things that are not reasonably within his sphere.

Mr. Crouso adds, that when employing a painter or decorator, to be sure and get one who has a known reputation for knowing these things, and for using quality materials and doing good work

City Builds Beautiful Rock Garden at McKinley Park

Through the efforts of the city park board and the citizens of Marion, plans were made and the building just completed of a rock garden at McKinley park which, in another year, will prove to be one of Marion's foremost beauty spots.

The rock garden has been built over the old bridge which was formerly at the entrance of the park and covers a space of ground just south of the lake. From a distance the garden resembles an Indian mound with its highest peak in the center and partly surrounded by a small stream of water. The northeast part of the garden slopes to a level with the ground and is attractively planted with fine grass and shrubs. At the place where the old bridge formerly was, a mound of stone has been erected over which a waterfall tumbles down into a rock basin and from there into the small stream partly encircling the garden.

Plans for the rock garden were laid out by Charles A. Raymond and Dr. F. R Mann, chairman of the park board. For several years McKinley park has been one of Marion's foremost parks but with this added feature the park will be one of Marion's most beautiful spots.

For several years there was talk of filling in the lake because of stagnate water conditions but by having this new feature in the park, these old plans have been abandoned and the lake preserved. The water passing over the waterfalls and through the stream will have a tendency to keep the water in McKinley lake purified and free from any stagnate condition which existed in the past years.

A Goulds centrifugal pump having a capacity of 100 gallons per minute was installed by the Ohio Pump & Supply, Inc., to furnish the water for the waterfalls.

Conditions Favorable Now for Building

The following information, which is reprinted from the real estate section of the New York Times, indicates why builders are urged to build now:

"The declines vary in different parts of the country, and in different branches of the building industry, but they average at least 15 per cent.

"Prices of building materials are much lower, and the efficiency of labor has increased.

"The time to take the fullest advantage of them is now.

"Those who begin erecting apartment buildings, as soon as practicable, will gain a permanent advantage over both those who have built at higher costs in the past and those who will build at higher costs in the future.

"The man who wants to build a new house, or modernize his old house, will be able to do so at a smaller expenditure within the next few months, than for years afterward"
